KUALA LUMPUR, April 8 (Bernama) -- The Barisan Nasional's (BN) manifesto is more concrete and shows the earnestness of Prime Minister Datuk Seri Najib Tun Razak in wanting to deliver the goods to the people, said Datuk Boon Som Inong, the senator responsible for the Siamese community in the country.

He said this was in line with the aspirations of the people because it covered all age groups, gender, races, religions and that no area was left out.

"I believe the manifesto will benefit all segments of society including the Siamese community which is recognised as Bumiputera by the government.

"I am confident that the Siamese community will also be included in programmes to advance the Bumiputera agenda through the provision of business opportunities and the right ecosystem, for example making available loans and training, besides institutional support," he said in a statement in Kuala Lumpur, Monday.

Boon Som said he hoped the Bumiputera status of the Siamese community would be realised at all levels of the government machinery, including government-linked companies (GLCs).

He added that he hoped the government would also further assist the community in land matters, schooling of Siamese children and their worshipping needs.
