KUALA LUMPUR, April 24 (Bernama) -- Barisan Nasional (BN) candidate for the Bandar Tun Razak Parliamentary seat, Tan Kok Eng, has started a house-to-house campaign to reach out to the voters and listen to their problems.

Tan was of the opinion that the method was effective since he could find out the problems of the people, including about clogged drains, damaged roads and helping those suffering from chronic diseases to seek treatment.

The Bandar Tun Razak MCA Youth chief said with the help of members of the BN component parties such as Umno and MIC, the problems of the residents can be easily solved.

"For example, when we meet Indian residents, the MIC members with me will also help them," he told reporters, here.

He hoped to visit every nook and cranny of the parliamentary area within the short campaign period, to get to know the problems of the people better and familiarise himself with the area.
