KUALA SELANGOR: Parti Keadilan Rakyat de facto leader Datuk Seri Anwar Ibrahim is still playing the victim card to win votes.

In his ceramah in Kuala Selangor on Monday, Anwar was telling an audience of 1,000 people, about his days in detention.

"I was kicked and stripped naked when I was in detention. I went through a lot of torture.

"I was not the only one who they targeted, my wife Azizah (Datin Seri Wan Azizah Wan Ismail), my daughter, Nurul Izzah and my six children became the victim of politics too," he said.

He accused former Prime Minister Tun Mahathir Mohamad for his downfall but then said that he had forgiven him (Mahathir).

"I forgive him but I will make sure his son would lose his Petronas contract if I win. That is why he is still trying to topple me," he said.

Anwar's ceramah, mostly on his "sufferings" during the six years he was in jail for sodomy and corruption charges, also touched on promises if Pakatan Rakyat wins the election.

"If we win, by May 7, we will reduce the petrol price, and we will make education free," he said.
