KUANTAN: A big transformation can be achieved without changing the government, said Prime Minister Datuk Seri Najib Tun Razak.

He said real change and progress was already taking place in Malaysia under the Barisan Nasional government so there was no need to change it.

"I know there are people peddling the word 'change' but can they bring about real change?"

"How can they do it when a ship has three helmsmen. Can you imagine what will happen? It will sink," said Najib at the launch of the Pahang Urban Transformation Centre (UTC) here Thursday.

He added that the Barisan government had proven itself with its transformation programmes.

"The proof is just right in front of your eyes. For example, the World Bank predicted our country's economic growth to be 4.5% last year but we performed better with 5.6%," said Najib.

The Pahang UTC houses 51 federal, state government and private agencies as well as seven non-governmental organisations under one roof.
