Electoral watchdog Bersih 2.0 will call for another rally if the Election Commission (EC) conducts the parliamentary seat redelineation process without cleaning up the electoral roll, co-chairman Datuk Ambiga Sreenevasan said today.

She said the movement would embark on a nationwide campaign to educate and raise awareness of the public regarding the consequences of the redelineation process expected to be conducted by end 2013.

"No when yet. It doesn't happen before the electoral roll clean up. You need about a year to clean up a roll. They have the time to do that first," she told reporters at an electoral reform seminar organised by the Bar Council in Kuala Lumpur.

The former Bar Council president said it would be meaningless to make any real electoral changes without having the electoral rolls cleaned up.

But she declined to say when a rally would happen, saying they would educate the people about the process first and allow the EC to carry out its work.
