SERIAN, Oct 5 (Bernama) -- Malaysians and Indonesians can play an important role in maintaining stability of Asean to enable it to continue to attract investors from outside the region.

Human Resource Minister Datuk Richard Riot Jaem today said that with the close relationship that had been nurtured since a long time ago, both countries could become models for other Asean member countries to contribute towards ensuring stability in the region.

"Without stability, there might not be big companies from other countries to invest in this region," he said when opening a cultural programme between Radio Television Malaysia (RTM) and Radio Republik Indonesia (RRI) here Saturday.

He said the good relations between Malaysia and Indonesia would be a strong platform for the setting up of the Asean Community by 2015.

He praised the efforts made by RTM and RRI in working together to hold the programme today.

This, he said, could further enhance understanding among the people of both countries.
