KUALA LUMPUR, March 26 (Bernama) -- Netherlands-based Fugro NV has been awarded a contract for the provision of rig and subsea positioning services by Murphy Sabah Oil Co Ltd.

Fugro said the contract, for the duration of three years plus a one year extension option, further strengthens the company's commitment to the continued development of Malaysian resources and investment in the country.

"The award will further strengthen a decade-long working relationship in support of Murphy's deepwater drilling and development programmes offshore Sabah and Sarawak," it said in a statement Wednesday.

It said the company had already provided support services to Murphy, including the use of highly specialised subsea survey systems for accurate metrology measurements, along with the provision of accurate offshore surface.

The company also provided services for subsea positioning and navigation systems for Murphy's drilling units and vessels, working in water depths of up to 2,000 metres.

Operating in four segments, namely geotechnical, survey, subsea services and geoscience, Fugro collects and interprets earth and engineering data to support the design, construction, installation, repair, and maintenance of offshore and onshore infrastructure.
