Putrajaya will collaborate with the International Civil Aviation Organisation (ICAO) to examine the safety issues at klia2 to satisfy related authorities including the public, acting Transport Minister Datuk Seri Hishammuddin Tun Hussein said today.

ICAO is the specialised agency under the United Nations that provides standards, regulations and procedures for international aviation.

A Bernama report quoted Hishammuddin (pic) as saying that ICAO has agreed to cooperate for this purpose and will send its representatives who will arrive Monday.

"The report from Ikram Premier Consulting, the independent consultant appointed by government to evaluate security level at klia2, has shown that there no safety issues, but this (matter) is still being talked about.

"If that is still the concern of the people, we will ask ICAO to look at this issue.

"This is to prove to the people that in the context of safety, the government will not compromise," he told a press conference after visiting the new airport in Sepang.

On the missing Malaysia Airlines flight MH370, Hishammuddin said representatives from three ministerial committees will leave soon for Perth to join the Australian-led search efforts in the southern Indian Ocean.

He however said it was yet to be finalised who will be going.

"The committee has held meetings three or four times, and I have told the Joint Agency Coordination Centre (JACC) chief Angus Houston that there is a high probability that they will go to Perth to discuss the SAR (Search and Recovery) with the JACC," he reportedly said. – April 12, 2014.
