KUALA LUMPUR, June 27 (Bernama) -- Datuk Seri Najib Tun Razak today praised the spirit and attitude showed by the majority of Malaysians in maintaining solidarity among the various race and religions in the country even during difficult times.

The prime minister did so after reading a Bernama report titled 'A 1Malaysia Story in Ward 10'.

In his Facebook update, Najib also provided a link to the article which was written by Sakini Mohd Said, who won several journalism awards recently.

"I'm deeply touched after reading this article. Although the patients in Ward 10 are suffering chronic illnesses, they are still able to crack a joke and make witty remarks to each other, which at the same time, enliven the spirit of solidarity and togetherness among themselves despite racial and religious differences.

"This is the spirit showed by the majority of people in the country, from the very beginning until now," he said.

The article revolved around the story of four women in the ward, who are suffering from various types of cancer, but had remained positive and provided continuous moral support for each other.

"Let's learn the lesson from their stories and pray for their health," Najib said.
