Ikatan Muslimin Malaysia (Isma) today said DAP was using pretty Malay girls in its attempt to portray the party as friendly to Malays and Muslims.

Isma vice-president Abdul Rahman Mt Dali said it was as if the party had no more Chinese girls in the party.

"In DAP's leadership, there are no Malays, but suddenly they want to put a Malay girl who is labelled as 'cun' (pretty), as if there are no more Chinese girls in the party.

"That's how DAP is trying to fool the young. I say it is a disgusting tactic when DAP uses a Malay girl to be the mask of its dangerous struggles against the position of Malays and Islam," he said in a statement.

Syefura Othman, 25, popularly known as Rara, recently said she had become a DAP life-member.

Rara said her chances in the DAP would be more promising compared to other parties in the Pakatan Rakyat coalition, and urged more young Malays to join the party.

But Abdul Rahman said youngsters who joined DAP were easily duped, saying they did not understand the Islamic struggle and the social contract in the Federal Constitution.

"I am sure DAP is fighting because it wants to be in power and change the position of Malays and Islam in the country.

"If they (the youngsters) understood, they would not have joined the DAP and can stand to see their own race and Islam being eroded," he said.

Rara was also reported as saying in Sinar Harian last week that she regarded DAP a "cool" party, which is also more open, and that was why she was attracted to it.

Abdul Rahman, however, said that the word "cool" which Rara had used to describe the DAP, showed that she was naive about the party's struggle.

"Those days, we could not even look at the rocket sign of the DAP because we understand the socialist struggle and Malaysian Malaysia concept that the party fought for.

"But now, we have reached a stage where Malay girls feel DAP is 'cool' and can even join in their struggles. Actually, that it is a sign that the identity of some young Malays is diluting and rotting," he added.
