SHAH ALAM, March 3 (Bernama) -- The mentor-mentee programme in his school and paying full attention in class were among Muhammad Nazaruddin Nazari's recipe for excellence in the Sijil Pelajaran Malaysia (SPM) examination, scoring 11A+s.

The 18-year-old from Sekolah Menengah (SM) Berasrama Penuh Integrasi Rawang said the recipe was confirmed a success after receiving his result slip today.

"In school, we have a mentor-mentee programme for Form Five students. Through this method, students who are good in certain subjects will help others who are weaker in these subjects...this facilitates us to revise the subjects more effectively.

"I am very pleased that this effort bore fruit when I got A+ in all the subjects I sat for. I would also like to thank the teachers who provided a lot of guidance," he told reporters after collecting his exam results at the Selangor Education Department, here.

Muhammad Nazaruddin is among the top SPM achievers in Selangor and his school was also announced as the best school in the exam in the state.

The teenager aims to further his studies at the London School of Economics, United Kingdom to fulfil his ambition to become an economist.

Attending school and living in a rural area did not deter Norasviza a/p Nassir, 18, to study hard so much so she was selected as the best SPM achiever among the Orang Asli in the state.

For her, her result of '2A+, 1A, 2A-, 1B and 1C+ could inspire her friends in Kampung Orang Asli Gombak to follow in her footsteps.

"Actually, many of my peers in the village are married and have children.

"My father has always stressed (the importance of) education to me and he wants me to continue studying.

"I will continue learning until I am called an educator one day," said the only child of a nursing assistant at the Gombak Orang Asli Hospital.
