Putrajaya needs the support of the private sector and non-governmental organisations (NGOs) to help the urban poor.

Deputy Prime Minister Tan Sri Muhyiddin Yassin said Putrajaya was concerned with problems such as housing, jobs and high cost of living.

"Introduction of the transformation policy has alleviated these problems," he said when launching the Kepong Foundation Dialysis Centre in Kuala Lumpur tonight.

Muhyiddin said Putrajaya's efforts to improve the economy, generate income and provide access to education require the support of various parties.

He added that The Kepong Foundation project must not fail as it was founded by Umno leaders who always championed the cause of the weak and poor.

"Umno is not only political, but also defends those in need in line with the government's people first concept," he said. – Bernama, March 1, 2015.
