KUALA LUMPUR, March 21 (Bernama) -- Police will investigate a local private business radio station which was alleged to have issued a video clip criticising the implementation of the 'hudud' law in Kelantan.

Inspector-General of Police Tan Sri Khalid Abu Bakar said the investigation involved the host of the business radio station as well as the individual who made the threat against the host concerned.

This was confirmed by Khalid through his official Twitter website Saturday.

"In the BFM, @PDRM case, police will investigate both parties, that is, the BFM broadcaster and the one threatening the broadcaster. The broadcaster's script writer would also be called up," he said.

Recently, the video clip entitled 'Hudud Isi Periuk Nasi' lasting 1.55 minutes received a lot of criticisms from various quarters in the social media, in fact, the video host received death and rape threats.
