KUALA LUMPUR, May 21 (Bernama) -- Sweden is looking forward to enhance cooperation with Malaysia, especially in the defence industry.

Its ambassador to Malaysia, Bengt G. Carlsson said his government looked forward to working together with the Malaysian Government.

He hoped Malaysia would "support" Swedish companies such as the aerospace and defence company, SAAB Group.

"So far, we have good relations and I hope we can enhance (the relations) in the defence industry.

"We are hoping for (to secure) successful contracts with our companies," he told reporters after attending a lecture on 'Combat Air System: Future Development, Challenges and Way Forward at the National Defence University of Malaysia' here today.

He noted the relationship between the two friendly nations were growing and they had enhanced ties substantially.

Diplomatic relations between Sweden and Malaysia were established in 1958.
