The prime minister and his wife were later received at the Palace Hotel in downtown Tokyo, where he will be staying, by Transport Minister Datuk Seri Liow Tiong Lai, Chief Secretary to the Government Tan Sri Ali Hamsa, members of the Malaysian delegation and embassy officials.

The official visit, at the invitation of Prime Minister Shinzo Abe, is Najib's second since taking over the country's helm in 2009.

Later in the evening today, Najib would attend a cocktail reception with about 250 Malaysian students and community.

During the visit here, Najib will have a tight schedule, with the highlight being an audience with Japan's Emperor Akihito and Empress Michiko at the Imperial Palace on Monday.
