The letter sent by lawyers representing Prime Minister Datuk Seri Najib Razak to The Wall Street Journal (WSJ) seeking confirmation about its report is an important first step, says Khairy Jamaluddin

The youth and sports minister said the letter allowed the WSJ to explain what it meant in its report.

"This is an important first step for us to know what WSJ actually means. I am sure when the clarification comes, a follow-up will be taken.

"If WSJ confirmed it said money from 1Malaysia Development Berhad (1MDB) was deposited into Najib's personal account, which he has denied, I believe the Najib will proceed with the lawsuit," he told reporters after visiting the Bazar Ramadan in Gong Badak, Terengganu, today.

Khairy said the move was very important to convince the people that the newspaper report was incorrect.

"The result of the investigation is very important for us to confirm the truth," he said.
