Lim Sian See has rattled off a long list of queries directed to Tun Dr. Mahatir in his LSS Report blog, ostensibly to extract truth behind his motivations and actions. But truth is in rare supply these days, and Lim should get in line behind 30 million members of the Public who also have some questions.

1. *"If this is how Tun Dr Mahathir is treated, the democratic right of ordinary Malaysians to question and criticise the government is in serious jeopardy,"*This from the man who, some say, is sitting in jail today for criticizing the policies of the same person who he is now defending. Ironic, perhaps, but it speaks volumes about the state of Malaysia today.

2. Lim Sian See has rattled off a long list of queries directed to Tun Dr. Mahatir in his LSS Report blog, ostensibly to extract truth behind his motivations and actions. But truth is in rare supply these days, and Lim should get in line behind 30 million members of the Public who also have some questions.

3. First and foremost, let us stop playing footsie. The foreplay has gone on far too long and it's time for some good old fashion action. The question is: Has there been commitment of grand theft, larceny, fraud and corruption, not just on the watch of the current administration but by its leader himself? Important question.

4. Second: Is the attempt to cover these actions resulting in the deterioration of the parliamentary democracy and the constitutional integrity of the Nation; as well as loss to the currency, economy, financial markets, foreign investment and ultimately the overall quality of life of the average citizen?

5. Third: Will this lingering stalemate result in the destabilization of the government, the bureaucracy, the independent bodies charged with oversight, the police, the rule of law, human rights and freedoms; and will it turn Malaysia into a banana republic, a failed state and general laughing stock that will tickle the lungs out of Mr. Bean?

Salvation, if not Truth

1. So far no one has proved any of it false. They have simply tried to obfuscate, to threaten, to sue, to imprison, and to use a veritable medley of words and excuses, some of them so ridiculous that it bears an unforgivable insult to the implied intelligence of both its speakers as well as their audience.
