KUALA LUMPUR, Aug 10 (Bernama) -- If given a choice between the latest gadgets and books, children as young as aged two years generally would choose to fiddle with the gadgets instead of spending some time on reading.

Concern over the young's obsession with gadgets has been expressed by well-known Malaysian novelist and writer Khadijah Hashim who finds that the majority of the young simply could not be without their gadgets even for a few seconds.

She cautioned that children who were obsessed with gadgets like smart phones and tablets would be living in their own world....
