The prime minister says the aggressive stand taken by President Duterte can improve security in the southern Philippines.

MANILA: Prime Minister Najib Razak hopes the more aggressive stand taken by Philippines President Rodrigo Duterte against extremists such as the Abu Sayyaf in the southern Philippines will improve the security in that region.

"I congratulate the government of the Philippines for having successfully killed an Abu Sayyaf leader two days ago.

"With the more aggressive action taken by President Duterte, we hope security in the southern Philippines will be improved," he told Malaysian journalists after the Asean Summit 2017 here.

According to some reports, the Philippines marines had killed Al-Habsi Misaya, a commander of the extremist Abu Sayyaf.

The prime minister said he had also expressed his gratitude to President Duterte for helping to rescue five Malaysian hostages kidnapped by the Abu Sayyaf.

Najib said Malaysia had also committed to continue assisting in the process to conclude the "Comprehensive Peace Plan" involving the Bangsa Moro.

In addition, he said the issue of terrorism had also drawn attention at the summit in which Malaysia said the country's contribution, including the deradicalization programme, had achieved a high level of success.

"This success shows that we can also contribute as we have a digital counter messaging centre.

"As such it must have the support and backing of the Asean countries to fight against the militant threat and violent extremism more effectively," he added.
