KUALA LUMPUR, Oct 10 (Bernama) -- Forging greater unity among Malaysians is one of the major challenges that needs to be given priority towards achieving the National Transformation 2050 (TN50) agenda, said Youth and Sports Minister Khairy Jamaluddin.

To this end, he said that of the factors that had to be looked into was the country's education system.

The current system was agreed upon by the races when Malaysia gained its independence decades ago, he said, adding that now many felt that it was a hindrance to national unity.

"Today we have national, Chinese-type, Tamil-type as well as international schools. This was agreed upon before and we respect that. Maybe it was workable during that time, but not now," he said during a TN50 dialogue with Touch 'N Go young executives here today.

Khairy said the matter of unity was not something tangible like economic statistics and rankings that could be easily measured or achieved.....
