The #UndiRosak movement will see BN win more marginal seats in the upcoming 14th general election, said Islamic Renaissance Front (IRF) chairperson Ahmad Farouk Musa.

This is because the movement attracts only former opposition supporters, he explained, but not those behind BN.

"In the end, in marginal seats basically, the current government is going to win.

"Because they (#UndiRosak advocates) were Pakatan (Rakyat) supporters before this and you have never heard of any government supporters becoming members of this #UndiRosak," Farouk said in his speech at the launch of former minister Zaid Ibrahim's book "The ZaidGeist" in Petaling Jaya today.

Farouk dismissed the #UndiRosak activists' argument that choosing between Pakatan Harapan and BN would be equivalent to choosing between Coca-Cola and Pepsi.

One is a kleptocratic government, he said, while the other is a coalition government without a dominant party.

"Nobody is dominant (in Harapan). Not Bersatu, Amanah, PKR or DAP," he said.

Even though Harapan is not perfect, Farouk added, the point that needs to be made in the coming polls is that BN, which has ruled the country for 60 years, is not invincible.

"If Harapan does not perform, if there is no reform after five years, we have the chance to change and revert the government, what's the problem?"

"The point is that BN is not infallible. Sixty years of power, they feel like they are invincible, that nobody can overthrow them.

"Now we are saying, we can throw you out of Putrajaya," he said.

The #UndiRosak movement urged voters to spoil their votes in GE14 to protest against the candidates put forth by the opposition, which they believe have dulled the distinction between them and BN.
