TRIPOLI, Aug 19 (Bernama) -- Libyan Prime Minister Baghdadi Ali Mahmudi on Thursday called for dialogue to solve the Libyan crisis, saying that peaceful talk is the necessary choice.

Speaking at a press conference after a cabinet meeting, Mahmudi said: "The Libyan crisis cannot be solved through military means, but can be solved through dialogue and consultative means," according to the China's Xinhua news agency, citing local press reports.

"Nato should immediately stop the bombardment over the Libyan people, thus creating conditions for dialogue and consultation," he said.

"We are not on the weak side by proposing for dialogue. This is because peaceful means is our choice. We hope the international community cooperate for a satisfactory solution," Mahmudi stressed.

He also said that various contacts are underway which is aimed at launching dialogue for a peaceful solution.
