RABAT, Aug 3 (BERNAMA-NNN-MAP) -- The Moroccan government has been mobilised to immediately implement the provisions of the country's new Constitution, says Communications Minister and Government Spokesman Khalid Naciri.

He told a media briefing here Tuesday after the weekly Cabinet meeting chaired by Prime Minister Abbas El Fassi that the government had followed the royal logic which was in perfect inter-action with the requirements of the current situation.

At the constitutional, legal and political levels, the government is able to draft, adopt and submit draft Bills to the Parliament in order to assume its duties in accordance with democratic and constitutional parliamentary mechanisms.

However, the government has opted for making consensus before starting the parliamentary debates, said the minister.

The government believes that pre-consensus will enable it to present to the Parliament appropriate texts which can be swiftly examined, he said.

A special session of Parliament is therefore necessary, with an agenda which includes an examination of laws governing elections, Naciri said.
