BANGKOK, Aug 3 (Bernama) -- Thailand on Tuesday has hosted the first international seminar on Asean cultural diversity, with the aim of promoting the preservation of this diversified culture, according to the Vietnam news agency (VNA).

The event has brought together Asean diplomats and scholars who discussed a wide range of topics, ranging from cultural diversification, world heritages in ASEAN, the link between culture and sustainable social development, to arts of performance and food for a wealthy and happy life.

The Asean member countries also shared about each other's culture and living styles, and this informations will contribute to build a strong Asean community, and maintain peace and unification in the bloc.

The event was jointly held by Vietnam's Institute of Languages, Arts and Culture and the Ministry of Culture of Thailand.
