Federal-State
Relations
in Sabah, Malaysia

The Institute of Southeast Asian Studies (ISEAS) was established as an autonomous organization in 1968. It is a regional centre dedicated to the study of socio-political, security and economic trends and developments in Southeast Asia and its wider geostrategic and economic environment. The Institute's research programmes are the Regional Economic Studies (RES, including ASEAN and APEC), Regional Strategic and Political Studies (RSPS), and Regional Social and Cultural Studies (RSCS).

ISEAS Publications, an established academic press, has issued more than 1,000 books and journals. It is the largest scholarly publisher of research about Southeast Asia from within the region. ISEAS Publications works with many other academic and trade publishers and distributors to disseminate important research and analyses from and about Southeast Asia to the rest of the world.

ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

In the research, preparation, and writing of this book, I benefited enormously from the advice, consultation and tolerance of Professor Francis Loh Kok Wah of the School of Social Sciences, Universiti Sains Malaysia (USM), who supervised the original postgraduate research on which this is based. I also want to thank Dr Lim Hong Hai of the School of Social Science, USM, for his critical but constructive comments. In Sabah, I would also like to express my appreciation to the staff of the Sabah Archives, the Sabah State Library, and the Research Library at Yayasan Sabah; all of whom were efficient and helpful in the services they provided. In Singapore, the staff at the Singapore/Malaysia Collection of the National University of Singapore Library were likewise extremely helpful. To all those who consented to be interviewed, I express my sincere thanks. I also made use of the Malaysian Hansard records collected by Dr Rochana Bajpai of the School of Oriental and African Studies, London, under a research grant from Balliol College, Oxford, and I wish to record my appreciation to her for allowing me access to these sources. I am very grateful to the School of Social Science and the Department of Political Science and International Studies at the University of Birmingham for funding my trip to Singapore to present some of the findings of this book at the 2nd Singapore Graduate Forum 2007, organized by the Asia Research Institute of the National University of Singapore; participant comments were also gratefully received.

Special acknowledgements for support and encouragement must go to my husband, Graham, the eternal optimist, and to my son, Nick, who provided essential distraction, both when it was needed and when it was not. I would also like to express my appreciation to Nancy, Japiril, James Lim Ching Ping and Matirissiah for their generous logistical and familial support, enabling the book to be finally completed. Last but not least, I would like to dedicate this book to my late father, Lim Ah Nick (1925–95), whose living memory of North Borneo and Sabah was the most precious inheritance that I have received, and which has enriched my life and the lives of others who knew him well.
