The Indonesia Project, a major international centre for research on the Indonesian economy and society is housed in the Crawford School of Economics and Government's Arndt-Corden Department of Economics. The Crawford School is part of the ANU College of Asia and the Pacific at The Australian National University (ANU). Established in 1965, the Project is well known and respected in Indonesia and in other places where Indonesia attracts serious scholarly and official interest. Funded by the ANU and the Australian Agency for International Development AusAID the Indonesia Project monitors and analyses recent economic developments in Indonesia, informs Australian governments, business and the wider community about those developments and about future prospects; stimulates research on the Indonesian economy and publishes the respected Bulletin of Indonesian Economic Studies.

The College's Department of Political and Social Change (PSC) focuses domestic politics, social processes and state-society relationships Asia and the Pacific, and has a long-established interest in Indonesia.

Together with PSC, the Project holds the annual Indonesia Update conference, which offers an overview of recent economic and political developments and devotes attention to a significant theme in Indonesia development. The of Indonesian Economic Studies publishes the conference's economic and political overviews, while the edited papers related to the conference theme are published in the Indonesia Update Series.

The Institute of Southeast Asian Studies (ISEAS) was established as an autonomous organization in 1968. It a regional centre dedicated to the study of socio-political, security and economic trends and developments Southeast Asia and its wider geostrategic and economic environment. The tute's research programmes are the Regional Economic Studies including ASEAN and APEC), Regional Strategic and Poli Studies (RSPS), and Regional Social and Cultural Studies (RSCS).

ISEAS Publishing, an established academic press, issued more than 2,000 books and journals. It the largest scholarly publisher of research about Southeast Asia from within the region. ISEAS Publishing works with many other academic and trade publishers and distributors to disseminate important research and analyses from and about Southeast Asia to the rest of the world.
