

"I DON'T KNOW WHY THEY HATE US"

July 23, 2010

chedet.co.cc

1. Americans seem incapable or more likely unable to accept the real reason why they are hated by Muslims.
2. After 9/11 Bush was reported to have said, "I don't know why they (the Muslims) hate us".
3. Later on answering his own question, Bush declared that "they hate our democracy. They hate our freedom".
4. Since then more and more reasons have been suggested as to why Muslim individuals are prepared to tie explosives to their bodies and blow themselves up in order to kill Americans.
5. Books have also been written about Islam and Muslims to explain their hatred of the Americans and the West. Much of the blame is placed on the teachings of Islam, in particular that which is concerned with jihad or holy war and martyrdom.
6. There have also been attempts to exonerate Islam and to attribute the violence against the West to the wrong interpretations of Islam by people with vested interest.
7. But the Americans almost invariably refuse to acknowledge that it was their seizure or their backing of the seizure of Palestinian land and their subsequent support of Israeli violence and oppression of the Palestinians which has caused the Muslims to hate the Americans. Each time the Palestinian tried to regain their land, the Americans would ensure that they fail by giving massive support for Israel. It is well-known that they provide financial support to sustain the state of Israel. Every time the Israelis set up settlements and build walls to break up Palestinian families, the US would back it. Israeli intransigence, Israel's disregard and breaches of international laws, disregard for normal human behaviour America would staunchly back Israel. To the Americans, Israel can do no wrong.
8. All these happened before the attack against the New York World Trade Centre. After that came the "shock and awe" invasions of Afghanistan and Iraq with the loss of life of hundreds of thousands of these people and the total destruction of their cities and countries.
9. Since the invasions the Americans have remained in occupation of these two countries, where American soldiers continue to kill civilians with impunity. Many innocent people have been detained and tortured. Muslim countries which are friendly towards the United States are not spared.
10. The so-called "war on terror" is clearly a war against Muslims. It is enough for a person to have a Muslim or a Muslim sounding name for him to be ill-treated and sometimes detained without trial for years.
11. Only Muslim countries have been attacked or are threatened to be attacked. Non-Muslim countries building nuclear weapons may be threatened but no real action would be taken.

12. So why do they, the Muslims, hate Americans? Is it because they hate democracy and freedom? Only the most stupid can suggest this. They hate Americans and Europeans generally because they aided and abetted in the seizure of Palestine, in the unquestioning support for Israel's oppression and brutalities, in Israel's settlements on Palestinian land, and all the other crimes committed by Israel.

13. They hate the Americans because without American support for Israel they, the Palestinians, could have regained their land. As it is they are not even allowed to call their land Palestine. They are just the Palestinian Authority.

14. When they are unable to withstand the oppression and the killing of their people and they hit back their action is not reported as retaliation against Israel's action. Instead when the Israelis hit with overwhelming force, killing hundreds and thousands as happened in Gaza, they were described as Israeli retaliation against the primitive Hamas rockets which did very little damage.

15. Americans should not kid themselves that they are hated for their democracy and freedom. They are not. They are not hated even for religious differences. They are hated because they join the Israelis in all their brutalities, in their illegal occupation of Palestinian land, in the protection they afford Israel intransigence against the rest of the world. And now of course in their terror attacks against the innocent peoples of Afghanistan, Iraq and other Muslim countries.

16. It is important that the Americans know and admit the true reasons for the hatred against them. It is important because until they do they will not be able to come up with any solution to the present costly war. This war can go on forever because future generations of Palestinians, of Muslims, will never forget the injustice inflicted on them by Americans.

Dear Tun,

Let us know what you know about this "Rothschild Dynasty". They are Jews that decided to change the religion of the Georgian of the Balkan. Since the history was been manipulated, how do we know the Yahudi we hated is the right one. This Rothschild Dynasty created Israel for their own interest and now this dynasty one headed by people like George Soros (one of the fund manager) really had a head on with you during the crisis. They fund wars and rulers. The taxes are the collateral. The own Bank of England as we mistaken that for National Bank of England (like our Bank Negara). They control the debt, the printing of the notes too. Now I am suspicious if they have a hand in our Bank Negara too. The scandal of contract for polymer bank note printing may be linked to these conspiracy where they will flood our country with bank notes that may crash any country economy. If they can do to England what is Malaysia.

These are not about Hate only but greed of power.

An extract of part of the Rothschild behind the establishment of Israel are as follows:

Jewish Identity and Positions on Zionism

Some Rothschilds were supporters of the State of Israel, although other members of the family opposed the creation of the state.[16] In 1917 Walter Rothschild, 2nd Baron Rothschild was the addressee of the Balfour Declaration to the Zionist Federation,[20] which committed the British government to the establishment in Palestine of a national home for the Jewish people. Lord Victor Rothschild was against granting asylum or even help to Jewish refugees during the Holocaust.[16]

After the death of James Jacob de Rothschild in 1868, Alphonse Rothschild, his oldest son, who took over the management of the family bank, was the most active in support for Eretz Israel.[21] The Rothschild family archives show that during the 1870s the family contributed nearly 500,000 francs per year on behalf of Eastern Jewry to the Alliance Israélite Universelle.[22] Baron Edmond James de Rothschild, James Jacob de Rothschild's's youngest son was a patron of the first settlement in Palestine at Rishon-LeZion, and bought from Ottoman landlords parts of the land which now makes up present-day Israel. In 1924, he established the Palestine Jewish Colonization Association (PICA), which acquired more than 125,000 acres (22,36 km<sup>2</sup>) of land and set up business ventures.[23] In Tel Aviv, he has a road, Rothschild Boulevard, named after him as well as various localities throughout Israel which he assisted in founding including Metulla, Zikhron Ya'akov, Rishon LeZion, and Rosh Pina. A park in Boulogne-Billancourt, Paris, the Parc Edmond de Rothschild (Edmond de Rothschild Park) is also named after its founder.[24]

The Rothschilds also played a significant part in the funding of Israel's governmental infrastructure. James A. de Rothschild financed the Knesset building as a gift to the State of Israel.[25] and the Supreme Court of Israel building was donated to Israel by Dorothy de Rothschild.[26] Outside the President's Chamber is displayed the letter Mrs Rothschild wrote to, the then current, Prime Minister Shimon Peres expressing her intention to donate a new building for the Supreme Court.[27]

Assalamu'alaikum Tun,

mohon izin mengulas hati.malaysia dan d.tan... Anda berdua seharusnya belajar budaya berfikiran lurus.andanda berdua dan orang-orang sejenis anda sebenarnya tahu membezakan salah atau benar tetapi anda sengaja memilih menjadi lebih yahudi dari yahudi sebenar. kenapa? apa yg membuat anda memihak kpd keganasan yahudi terhadap umat Islam Palestin? the enemy of my enemy is my friend? atau adakah anda "terpengaruh" oleh propaganda yahudi? itu amat tidak mungkin sebab anda adalah kaum opportunist yg sentiasa menyebelahi pihak yg "tentu-menang". kalau ada negara Islam yg kuat, d.tan dan s.tan dan kaum nya tidak mungkin akan mempersendakan penderitaan Palestin yg memang terang-terang dizalimi oleh Israil dan Amerika.

saya tidak merasa bertanggungjawab menjelaskan kpd anda tentang agama saya. tapi saya inginkan tegaskan disini perbezaan anda dan saya yg tidak mungkin akan ada titik pertemuan sekiranya anda terus mengingkari akal anda sendiri.

Islam adalah agama suci yg hanya tunduk menyembah Tuhan yg Esa yg Mencipta alam ini berserta segala isinya. apapun makhluk lain yg ada hanya lah hamba kpd Allah swt yg tidak boleh kita takuti. umat Islam perlu menunjukkan budi-pekerti yg sangat tinggi terhadap orang lain, tak kira bangsa atau agama. itu peraturan ketat agama Islam.

tetapi Islam bukanlah seperti ajaran agama-agama penyembah berhala yg ekstremis hinggalah jika ditampar pipi kiri, dihulur pula pipi kanan. atau tak sampai hati nak pijak rumput sebab takut rumput mati. atau begitu sayangkan haiwan hingga sanggup cuma makan sayur saja. Islam mengajar kami ke-sederhana-an. kami tidak condong kekiri atau kekanan. tidak zalim dan tidak penakut.

Islam bukan agama orang-orang dayus yg membiarkan saja hak nya diganggu-gugat sewenang-wenang nya. ditegaskan didalam Islam orang dayus, orang yg lari dari medan perang, tak akan cium bau syurga. sekali pun musuh adalah amat besar dan kuat, apabila hak kami diganggu, maka hukum nya wajib untuk menentang. sekalipun ular sebesar gunung, seorang Muslim tidak boleh bersa takut. hak mesti dipertahankan.

sebab itu mujahidin yg hanya bersenjatakan senapang dan menunggang kuda berani bangkit melawan bala tentera hebat pihak Amerika atau Israil... jauh berbeza dgn anda. anda adalah kaum dayus yg hanya berani bila telah sekuat atau sebesar musuh anda. ketika anda lemah, anda akan tunduk terbongkok-bongkok menyembah musuh anda. bila sudah kuat dan yakin menang, baru anda berani tunjuk besar kepala. itu kah ajaran terbaik agama anda?

hati. malaysia, untuk pengetahuan anda, walaupun Islam kami junjung tinggi, tak ada umat Islam yg akan bertindak liar seperti apa yg anda katakan sampai memijak kepala lembu tanda menghina agama lain. adakah yg anda nampak itu benar-benar orang Islam? kenapa tutup kemungkinan yg orang-orang itu hanya sekedar tentera upahan PLA? tapi sekiranya benar orang Islam berbuat begitu, mereka itu pun dangkal akal nya dan layak di didik dgn hukuman setimpal.

d.tan, Arab Saudi adalah tanah suci kami. orang kafir seperti anda adalah HARAM menjejakkan kaki kesana. ini bukan dasar rasmi kerajaan Arab Saudi, tapi sebaliknya adalah hukum agama Islam yg termaktub dalam Al Quran yg mengatakan orang-orang kafir adalah najis dan tidak dibolehkan samasekali masuk ke Tanah Suci. saya harap anda jangan kecil hati. saya sangat bersetuju dgn kata-kata Churchill yg anda tukil;

"Appeasement is like feeding an alligator in the vain hope that he'll eat you last."

kata-kata ini sepatut nya Tun bawa kpd PM Najib agar berpada-pada dalam memberi makan buaya. jgn lah hak bumiputra ditabur sesuka hati kpd orang-orang asing yg secara jelas telah menunjukkan kebencian yg amat sangat terhadap kita. mereka telah mengambil pendirian permusuhan terhadap kita, seperti yg digambarkan oleh gunse007, d.tan dan sebagai nya.

Tun yg kami kasihi, nasib umat Islam wlau dimana pun, sebenar berkait rapat. kita tahu siapa musuh yg menzalami sebahagian saudara kita, tapi kita juga perlu waspada. bukan hanya Palestin, kita bangsa Melayu juga boleh mengalami nasib yg sama.

semuga Allah panjangkan umur Tun dan isteri dgn kesihatan yg sempurna untuk terus menanam jiwa patriotik dan mendidik anak bangsa kita.terimakasih Tun.

Apabila manusia berkuasa, mereka tidak nampak dan memandang kecil "collateral damage" dari perbuatan mereka.

Hukum "keseimbangan alam" zalim mendapat zalim, licik mendapat licik dan ganas mendapat ganas.

Amerika melalui proses dalam kitaran tamadun mereka. Di Malaysia ini kita pun dalam peringkat satu kitaran. Malangnya "The Old School" dalam dunia politik masih ditakuk lama. Taktik lapuk, kaedah lapuk, manifesto lapuk masih dijadikan modal. Gelombang desakan perubahan mahukan "order yang lebih adil dan ikhlas" gagal diterjemahkan oleh warga politik baik Parti Pemerintah mahupun Parti Pembangkang.

Paling merbahaya adalah gelagat pembangkang,Parti Chauvinist proksi Singapura(biadap) dan fahaman radikal anti Islam dikalangan bukan Islam. Sebagai contoh perangai biadap mereka yang diberi mandat di Selangor boleh mencetuskan gelombang baru yang mungkin tidak dapat dilihat dengan mata kasar. PRU12 gagal difahami oleh ramai "old school" bahawa generasi "new school" sudah bosan dan mangli dengan "collateral damage" yg tidak kesudahan. Malah, boleh didrafkan SOP (standard ops procedure) sifir 3 langkah dihadapan untuk menjangka strategi dan taktik licik golongan seperti ini. Tahniah kepada mereka kerana gelojoh membuka warna sebenar secara rasmi melalui ujian pasca PRU12.

Menyerang hak melayu sadalah satu kesilapan walau atas dasar apasekalipun dalam konteks Malaysia. Namun menyerang Islam dalam pelbagai bentuk halus adalah satu pelaburan masa hadapan yg lebih bahaya kepada golongan syok sendiri ini walaupun dinyatakan atas dasar niat super kemanusiaan dan keadilan mulia(telunjuk berkait).

Jadi mungkin di masa depan, senario yang sama berlaku di Malaysia. "I DON'T KNOW WHY THEY HATE US" dari mulut mereka yang syok sendiri ini.

1Malaysia , Berjuta hati dan cara berfikir. Jangan lupa majoriti "silence" yang merendah diri sedang memerhati secara rinci dan kalkulatif.

Maaflah kalau komen saya begitu simple dan santai tanpa "argument" berjela2.

Sdr. Zulkiflee Bin Arip tolong saya memahami maksud perkataan "kafir" ? :-)

you like your idol like to spin what others say, but yourself mislead with your conflicting statement.

If you per your statement state that Islam respects other believes -then it's only appropriate to lose the term "non-believer". Why say you respect people of other faith in one breathe, only to then hit below the belt by calling them non-believers.

Secondly, you call me mini Bush...on what context do you refer to me as that?

It will be akin to me calling you a Fascists...without me listening to your comments nor taking the effort to understand your sentiments. On saying that however, I think I would be more accurate to call you and Tun Mahathir a fascist as opposed to you refering to me as "mini-bush".

And before Tun Mahathir's devotees get enraged for me refering to him as Fascist - pls go check the correct meaning to the term...it is not an insult but refers to a person's way of thinking or ideology they subscribe to.

don't make the same mistake when people got upset when paul Keating refered to Dr. Mahathir as recalcitrant...meaning stubborn...which people just went off their marbles instead of actually understanding the context of it's reference.

Dear Honourable Dr M,

Salam dari sebarang tambak.

I fully agree with your analysis. The real issue is not about the truth as what you have laid them out here. I firmly believe that many people who are discerning enough to find out the truth are already aware of these things that you spoke about.

The issue is with the American people, whom, pardon my language, appears to be blinded by indifference, or to put it bluntly, being nonchalant about the kind of information diet that they get on a daily basis from networks like Fox News. Young Americans seem to be, or so it is made out to be in the media, casual about the kind of unjust policies that their government enact overseas, in particular the Palestinian issue. It appears that young Americans would rather occupy themselves with trying to be the next American Idol. In the recent protests in Washington DC in the aftermath of the Gaza flotilla killings, we dont see hoardes of young Americans carrying placards. This phenomena, is not unique to the American society as it is also repeated all over the world. It demonstrates how much uninvolved young people are these days in issues where it concerns social justice. Dont get me wrong, Palestine should not be the only issue to be concerned of. But the Palestine issue has evolved beyond just itself. Palestine represents a regression of humanity- here we are in the 21st century, but there we have a draconian almost middle-age like treatment of mankind subjected upon a weak people by stronger forces.

The irony of it all is that it took the demise of 9 lives on board the flotilla for the world's attention to be focussed on the plight of people who are suffering.

Someone will have to apologize for this inhumane treatment of the Palestinians, one day, as much as we apologized for the holocaust. I pray that the day will come sooner rather than later.

Kind regards.

"THE WORST OF THEM ARE HERE IN MALAYSIA AND THE GOVERNMENT STILL SENDS THEM FOR FURTHER STUDIES THERE (US). WHY NOT SEND MUSLIM STUDENTS HERE TO PAKISTAN SO THAT THEY CAN BE TRAINED AS SUICIDE BOMBERS."

I am assuming that u are referring to the Malay students that the government are sending for further education in the USA. Why should'nt they?, The Malays have got nothing against the American people we know the American public has been misinformed if not ill informed about the going on in the world by their government media where its not a secret that everybody knew is controlled by the Jews. Further more by sending Malaysian students there, they might learn to build a Nuke bomb which is much better than being a suicide bombers....)

"IF YOU MUSLIMS HATE THE US SO MUCH THEN DON'T GO THERE AND STUDY! GIVE WAY FOR OTHER RACES."

Like I explained above, we dont hate the US people and while the Malay students were there they would explained to the Americans about the truth and that is why now Islam is the fastest growing religion among the Whites and Latinos in America and hopefully when most American have become Muslims, the middle east crisis will be the things of the past. As for the other "races" the government do send other races on scholarship to study in the US. Unfortunately there are students of other races if not all who behave like a "pariah" like you, not only will they distort the truth about Islam, they also distort the truth about Malaysia which will later add additional problem in Malaysia.

I dont doubt that u are a true crusader because history shows that the reason the crusaders were in Jurusalem were to plunder the wealth there is to be found in those region. I believe the same goes for you as long as there is wealth in this country you would go around crowing that u are a Malaysian. You are more like a parasites than a crusaders...)

Dear Tun,

Please allow me to sub-comment on some of question and accusation trown to me.

Dear prof_ridcull,

I could not recall where I read it, I might have heard it somewhere, the story you indicated sounds same, I remember this case (minus the details) because it show how tolerances Islam teaching is. I might be wrong on the details. Excuse me for the error.

Dear Zulkiflee Bin Arip,

Your quote "memang saya setuju penuh kata-kata Tun tentang perang yg di lancarkan Amerika-Eropah-Yahudi terhadap negara-negara Islam.tapi kita juga harus sedar bahwa disini pun bertebaran bush-bush kecil seperti ravi dan hati.malaysia yg tidak harus kita ambil ringan."

Please note I will not harm any human being form any religion for the reason to uplifting my religion or proofing that my religion is the superior. My religion does not teach me and I do not know how. It's very sad and disappointing that you *same-kan* me and bush, and called me *bush-bush kecil*, saya cuma ketawa bila kawan-kawan kamu ambil kepala lembu dan pijak di tengah jalan, saya tak marah, I was sad and confuse why that Islam followrs does this.

With Tuns, article I am clear. That ALL, I am not going to hurt you EVEN if you KEEP HURTING ME.

Enjoy your life on earth.

Assallammualaikum Tun,

It had been more than 6 months I had not been updated by your blog. I had seem IDP in EL-Fasher, Darfur, their potential prosperity and many more. Why the American thought we hate them are just guilt. They want our wealth ( especially in Africa, namely Sudan etc for free) and the best way is to fund WARS.

I had also discovered the biggest conspiracy of mankind by the Rotschild Family since 200 years ago. They are the brainchild behind the creation of Israel as their game tools. They caused the hatred among races and religion etc. They established banks and ever willing to fund WARS. They provide cheap loan to the rulers, the more the better. They don't even need collateral. They are worth all the Forbes top 50 put together.

They are having offices in Singapore and even here in Kuala Lumpur.

It is so frightening when I was made known of this conspirator. Not from any muslim here or in Sudan, but from an American.

I hope you can reveal this conspirator as some link to know these conspiracy just shows errors

Aftermath of war on terror and hate:

1. The west send soldiers to Iraq, Afghanistan, Pakistan and become moving targets though the ratio of kill:kill is in their favour.
2. They lost in Iraq; are losing and pulling out from Afghanistan. They will hate us more.

3. Muslim states are devastated, thousands died. Revenge they will in one form or another till the next thousand years.

4. Many willing to die fighting. The number of suicide bombers will increase be it in Iraq, Afghanistan, Pakistan, Kashmir, Palestine, Lebanon, Somali, Sudan, Yemen, Arabia, Balkan, Patani, Moroland ...

5. The Palestinians invent home-made rockets, become expert in tunnel-digging.

5. Population movement and out-migration of Muslims in turmoil areas increased and many landed in the west. Islam will rise from the west.

6. How much the mother earth can take the massacres, the ground-shaking bombs and missiles, and the scorching?

7. When mother earth gets jilted the sun rises from the west! By then it's too late for that's the end of time.

Assalamualaium Tun....

Dari dulu lagi memang kefahaman saya mcm tu, bencikan Amerika. Tapi bila difikir-fikirkan balik, sebenarnya Amerika itu sendiri adalah boneka Yahudi, sebenarnya apa yang di 'backing' oleh Amerika itu adalah ide Yahudi sendiri. Sebenarnya Amerika sudah lama hilang kuasa dan demokrasi mereka di tangan Yahudi. Ekonomi dan politik mereka dikuasai Yahudi. Rakyat dan pemimpin Amerika sendiri sedang digula-gulakan oleh bangsa Yahudi, dan mereka tidak boleh berbuat apa-apa. Mereka fikir mereka (Amerika) negara paling kuat, paling demokrasi, padahal mereka sebenarnya ialah boneka Israel. Kita sekarang perlu menyedarkan masyarakat dan pemimpin Amerika sendiri bahawa mereka sebenarnya sedang diperbodohkan oleh bangsa Yahudi. Kasihan juga dengan rakyat amerika yang patriotik membuta tulu dengan negara mereka, padahal semua keputusan pemimpin mereka adalah datangnya daripada keputusan Yahudi...

Assalamualaikum Dr.M,

Im a teenager with an unhealthy interest in politics:D Currently im devouring all of the american political scene news. And i stumbled across these two gentlemen. One of the far left wing liberal Dennis Kucinich and another one is the conservative republican (and i mean pure conservative, not the McCain and the Palin woman, oh it pains me just to type their names).

Anyway, im very interested to know what your thoughts are on these two people. They have been trying to get it across to America the real reasons why they were attacked and being hated. It seems they are the only two sane people in America right now if you ask me:D Imagine my surprise when i remembered i barely heard of these two people during the '08 election. (Dr. M, im no conspiracy theorist, but you tell me, is it true there are other people behind the scene with much greater influence that are actually controlling this world? Scary thought that:)

Im trying to be very cautious with politicians, but you are the only one i trust implicitly :D
Dr. M, i have been a long time admirer of yours. When i was younger, i always watched your speeches when you were the PM on tv, whenever your government had an assembly. And they say Obama has a rhetorical skill...cheh! You could make Obama eat dust.

With that, i pray to God that your health will continue so you can chide all of the dimwitted people across the world who happen to have too much power for their (or the people, for that matter) own good. Hope to hear your reply soon!!

Salam YAB Tun,

Maaf jika pandangan saya berbeza.

Kenapa kita selalu menyalahkan orang lain? Adakah disebabkan kelemahan umat Islam (BUKANNYA ISLAM), orang lain telah eksploitasinya (i.e. capitalise our own weaknesses)? Adakah ini yang telah dijanjikan oleh Allah, jika kita gagal melaksanakan tanggungjawab kita?

Kita mesti sedar sekarang ini. Masalah domestik umat Islam mesti diselesaikan menurut cara yang dilandaskan oleh Allah dan Rasul. Diri kita, keluarga kita, jiran kita, bandar kita, daerah kita, negeri kita, negara kita dan seluruh umat Islam mesti diperbaiki dengan serentak.

Kita mesti ingat. Setiap janji Allah ada pra syaratnya. Penuhilah syarat-syaratNya, dan Allah pasti akan tunaikan. Sebaliknya, kita minta Allah penuhi janjiNya tanpa kita memenuhi syaratNya. Kalau urusan anak dan ayah, sudah pastinya anak itu diberi penampar kerana sibuk tuntutan janji tanpa memenuhi syarat yang diberi oleh ayah. Sibuk hendak basikal tapi peperiksaan gagal.

Kita mesti ingat. Keadaan sekarang tidak akan berubah selagi syarat-syarat Allah tidak dipenuhi.

Wasalam.

Just a short comment Tun,

hati.malaysia

You said, I read an article the Prophet Muhammad (s.a.a.w.) allow a non-Muslim woman to build temple in Mecca (after the woman temple been destroyed by his follower) and provide protection for her to practice her believe.

I don't know where you got this but I've not found this incredible story in the Hadiths or biographies of Prophet Muhammad (saw). Perhaps you can point me towards the article?

There are reports, however, of Caliph Umar (ra) ordering Amr Al-As, the governor of Egypt, to restore a Christian woman's house which the governor had demolished in order to expand a mosque, and to demolish the newly constructed part of the mosque.

Tun,

I can tell you why Islamist Terrorists hate Americans. It is because of the concept of 'Dar al-Islam'. They believe that the epicenter in the middle east belongs to Islam and only when it is achieved will they attain 'Dar al-Salam'. They don't believe in sharing holy land and can't stand the fact that Israel is well able to fight back with America at her side. Palestinians are just a pawn that Islamists use to garner support and pity. Extremist the likes 'Ahmadinejad', 'Mashal', 'Nasrallah' etc know if they can ghettoize Gaza, Lebanon and use terrorist guerrilla tactics they are able to bait Israel into reacting. 'Erdogan' is the new addition to the Islamic gangster club. Tun, Israel is the 'Canary in the Coal Mine'. If the West appeased the Muslim world by turning its back on Israel and Israel was gone. Islamist extremists would find someone else to hate. Let me remind you that you do have a 'Dar al-Salam'. Its' called Saudi Arabia. That 'Benevolent Nation' is not exactly opening its door to refugees, immigration and/or tolerant of other religions. I don't see people clamoring to embrace and/or move into Saudi.

Even Singapore whom you feel has marginalized Muslims has an immigration and religious tolerance policy that is more open than Saudi.

Are you looking at Americans objectively or are your views just as polarized as an Islamist Terrorist? Appease the Islamic world by forcing Israel to capitulate and the problem will go away?

Winston Churchill once said, "Appeasement is like feeding an alligator in the vain hope that he'll eat you last."

Dear Tun,

Do I really hate American?. I don't think so even though I am a Muslim... Most American are good, friendly, nice, peace lover and caring.

The only American I don't like most is Mr BUSH. Other Americans that I don't like too are those who support him which is responsible for the war crime. He is the war criminal. Who are responsible for the mushrooming of terrorist in this peaceful world. Terrorist are the oppressed people, the victim of crime that emerge as a result of people like Mr Bush.

He is the one who is responsible of making this world extremely unsafe.

That the reason why we Muslim hate Mr Bush and his ally.

To most American we love you.

Dear Tun,

Fast forward to modern time.. Imagine if, instead of them, God gave the most powerful weapon to those cultures which believe that the land "from where the sun rise to where the sun sets" belong to them, we could have been evaporated, to make space.

If not because of their ideas (or God's initiative given to them first?), kuli we become. kuli never rests in a week. Ask those chinese what "ya tou" means and you will know.

Dear Tun,

I would say if that verse in their book that mentioned about the promised land, if it was written by a human, being greedy in nature especially in that era, he would surely have written that the whole world was promised to them by God, instead of just that small piece of land, mmm.. must be something isn't it.

Salam Tun,

Kenapa Orang Islam ditindas, sebabnya ialah:

Kalau tanya pemimpin Islam mereka percaya tidak kepada Allah dan menurut perintah Allah?. Mereka akan jawab sudah tentu.

Tanya lagi kepada mereka adakah mereka patuh akan perintah Allah dan Nabi Muhammad S.A.W.? Mereka akan jawab sudah tentu.

Tetapi sebenarnya tidak. Kerana banyak perintah Allah tidak dilaksana. Selagi mereka tidak melaksana perintah Allah selagi itulah mereka akan ditindas. Kekuatan Orang Islam ialah sebenarnya yakin perintah Allah mesti dilaksana bukan dipermainkan. Jangan salahkan orang lain, salahkan diri sendiri. Maka dengan itu perintah Allah mesti dilaksana jangan ragu-ragu dan jangan takut.

Assalamualaikum Tun.

Bush kata begitu sebab dia ada ramai pengikut.Salah ke betul ke kira betullah.

Macam kita kat Malaysia ni la.Bila suruh letak jawatan sikit,mulalah canang seluruh Malaysia yang pengundi kat kawasan dia berjuta mengundi dia.

Apa nak diherankan sangat.Syaitan pun ramai pengikut.

Macam cerita yang mungkin biasa kita baca.'Kalu mung nak tunjuk kebolehan berjalan atas air,marilah kita bersembang kat atas udara sambil terbang'.

Kesimpulannya nak kemana gok pengikut yang berjuta ramai tu.

Bila dah tiba masa generasi masa depan mengambil alih,mereka takkan lupa apa yang orang-orang macam Bush ni dah buat.

Terima kasih Tun.

I think American leaders are pretending not knowing why Muslim countries hate them..I am very sure they know but ignorant. In short they are arrogant. American leaders are strong supoporters and sponsors of world terrorist--Israel, the real terrorist in the world.

Assalamu'alaikum Tun, memang cubit paha kanan,paha kira terasa juga.Iraq,Afghanistan, Chechnya,Bosnia adalah bumi kita yg diserang.Palestin,Kashmir, Xinjiang,Mindanao dan Pattani adalah juga saudara yg dipisahkan dari kita.tapi bukan cuma mereka saja yg Islam.kita pun Islam juga. bukan mereka saja yg tertindas,kita pun tertindas juga.kita pun ada masalah dgn orang-orang asing lagi kafir,yg kehadiran mereka tidak kita ingini tetapi terpaksa kita berkongsi kerakyatan bumi kita.

apa guna kita tangisi derita saudara seagama kita di Iraq atau Palestin atau Xinjiang atau Singapura sekalipun kalau kita sendiri tertindas? gara-gara tentangan orang kafir-asing,tak ada lagi negeri atau kampung yg boleh kita pelihara kemurnian nya ala Semerah Padi.padahal kita merdeka lagi berdaulat.padahal orang-orang kafir ini hanya lah pendatang yg kita beri hak menentang...

memang saya setuju penuh kata-kata Tun tentang perang yg di lancarkan Amerika-Eropah-Yahudi terhadap negara-negara Islam.tapi kita juga harus sedar bahwa disini pun bertebaran bush-bush kecil seperti ravi dan hati.malaysia yg tidak harus kita ambil ringan.

kalau diberi peluang,beruk-beruk oppurtunist ini pun tak akan teragak-agak bertindak ala Bush membantai kita dgn segala senjata yg mereka ada.kafir tetap kafir.mereka tak akan mendiamkan Islam atau umat dalam keadaan selamat.kita harus mengakui hakikat permusuhan ini.Islam dan kafir musuh.kita dgn segala kelemahan,defensif,mereka dgn segala kekuatan,agresif.

Islam tidak bermusuah dgn Hindu atau Kristian atau Buddha.Islam tidak bermusuah dgn agama lain.musuh sebenar Islam adalah Kekafiran.kalau orang kristian atau hindu atau buddha menjaga agama nya dgn baik,tidak mengambil mudah agama masing-masing,tidak mempermain-mainkan Tuhan yg mereka sembah baik melalui kata-kata atau tingkah laku,dan lebih penting,kembali kesempadan leluhur masing-masing,kembali pula mendalami agama masing-masing,dunia ini boleh aman.

malang nya,hari ini orang-orang kafir ini lebih gemar mempropaganda kan fahaman sekular,yg asal mula dicipta untuk meminggirkan agama.sedang agama-agama lain mengambil sikap terbuka dan passive dalam melawan sekularisme,Islam pula,dgn segala kelengkapan Ajaran nya tegas menolak keras pengaruh sekularisma ini.pemikir-pemikir Yahudi,yg sejak dari zaman Samiri,Judas dan Paulus,Darwin,Marx,Engel hingga ke Hillary Clinton memang bertugas sepenuh masa untuk menyesatkan manusia.malang nya sebahagian besar kita buta-akal tidak melihat bagaimana Nabi Musa a.s diubah dan menjadi Krishna dan disembah bertentangan dgn ajaran Tauhid yg dibawa nya.Nabi Isa a.s ditukar menjadi sebagian Trinity yg dicampur-aduk kepercayaan Roman.dan ajaran Rasulullah Muhammad s.a.w dijadikan amat sukar untuk dipelihara hari ini adalah juga gara-gara yahudi yg telah banyak berjaya menyesatkan manusia.

Tun yg berbahgia,walaupun cubit paha kiri,paha kanan rasa juga sakit nya,kita perlu bersikap praktikal.kita di Nusantara ini pun bermasalah.bukan saja Amerika dan Yahudi,malah Lim Guan Eng,Karpal Singh,Lee Kuan Yew dan Thaksin pun kalau boleh,kalau diberi peluang mahu mengembalikan 360 berhala ke dalam Kaabah Baitullah.

firman Allah Subhanaullahu Ta'ala

"mereka ingin supaya kamu kafir pula seperti mereka,sehingga kamu semuanya menjadi sama...."

Surah An Nisa ayat 89.

ini adalah ketentuan dari Allah Subhanaullah Ta'ala tentang tujuan akhir orang-orang kafir terhadap umat Islam.sebab itu kita perlu sentiasa waspada dan memperbaiki kemampuan kita.Insya-Allah jika kita kuat,Insya-Allah kita lebih selamat.

terimakasih Tun.

As long as there are some group of religion thinks they are superior than the other, war will keep on happening. Give respect to all religion and dont step into other people's house first before preaching here.

Stop condemning other Non Believer as going to Hell, degrade them as very low class and pay unnecessary tax on them...

Dearest Tun,

Hazman Abu Bakar & azfarhanif July 23 2010 1.08pm & 8.56pm resp.

God's punishment on Muslims?Obviously.We have harmed ourselves by not following God's commandments.We have not studied the Quran as God have commanded but instead being ignorant and lazy we simply put our trust more on people who we thought are knowleadgeable based on their religious outlook only.

These people are actually asking us to do just the things contrary to what the Quran is telling us to do.For eg ,the Quran is clear that we should not fall into sects and divisions but these people justified with wonderous arguments that it is 'not necessarily so'.Who is the bigger authority,these people or The Quran?

The Quran say killing one life is like the killing of whole humanity yet these people say that it's alright to commit suicide and kill other innocent people in a bomb blast if it can bring justice to Islam.If dying in a war (shahid)is the objective of Muslims then the Muslim army cannot win the wars.It is the fight to stay alive and defeat the enemies which is the right objective.

But should you die after trying hard not to, in your defence obligation only is your death regarded Martyrdom(shahid).That's why the prophet prepared the Muslim army with all the necessary military training to defend Medina.For what purpose the training ,to die and be beaten or to stay alive and win?So is suicide ever Islamic injunction in a battle?

Tun,can't you get all the Muslim scholars and religious authorities in the Muslim world to get together to agree that no committing suicide in any form for whatever purpose is Islamic,that it is infact haram?

This suicide bombing is really the evil that's causing a lot of misery in this world and making Islam a very violent and ungodly religion and why edwin in his postin 2;19pm hated the Muslims and you can't blame him.Stop giving the West the ammuniton to justify destroying the Muslims with the world's consent ,the one thing they are very good at.

How about you pursuing a CRIMINALIZE SUICIDE BOMBING campaign,at least this is something very much within our grasp?More urgent too wouldn't you agree?Thanks Tun.

Salam sejahtera untuk Tun sekeluarga.

Benar kata kau JERANTUT, saya pun merasakannya begitu. Walau dimana pun konflik di dunia ini pasti ada Amerika masuk campur.

Melalui ejen perisikan mereka (CIA) dan juga ajen perisikan Israel (MOSAD) ) yang saling bekerjasama bantu-membantu terutama dalam hal ehwal di Negara Islam sudah menjadi lumrah.

Mereka pandai LAKUNKAN sesuatu trajedi (iaitu sikap baling batu sorok tangan) seolah-olah kejadian itu berlaku kononnya adalah angkara pengganas atau pihak lawan dari dua Negara yang sedang bermusuhan.

Rentetan dari itu berbagai teori meyakinkan dikeluarkan. Melalui kuasa media mereka yang berpengaruh, teori diwar-warkan sehingga akhirnya mengundang campurtangan mereka, Kononnya datang untuk membantu.

Ini adalah tektik lama yang dipelajari semenjak era penjajahan lagi, Mereka memang gemar melakukannya sebagai warisan turun-temurun orang Barat. tq Tun.

<http://bangmalaysia.wordpress.com/2009/11/25/mahathir-squandered-rm100-bil-says-new-book/#comment-1490> since 18 July 2010 in response to more (12 May 2010 6.03pm on separate PM and Finance Minister and karma) refer:

Excellent comment.

If we recall the events of the last regional economic crisis in 1998, leaving the Ministry of Finance detached from the Prime Minister's Office could lead to unhealthy competition fuelled by red carpets and 21-gun salutes. Even USA allows 2 terms of 4 years each, a pity as Clinton was very close to closing the deal on the Roadmap to Peace when he was impeached – now, how much was THAT a coincidence?

In debating whether independent Finance Ministers are a good idea – we can see how Gordon Brown set Tony Blair up with his unpopular economic policies – to take over after 10 years. He didn't last long, did he? I agree with you – Karma ...

Talking about Tony Blair, I recall watching him on TV convincing the British House of Commons on the Weapons of Mass Destruction (WMD) in Iraq. Have they found the WMD? At the time, an Australian notary was querying – what has the War on Terror got to do with the War on Iraq? Even former British Head of MI5 reckoned it was a “huge overreaction”. Good thing Obama is trying to end it. Dunno about Afghanistan though – fighting over mapped minerals I guess. Always wondered what the bombings were about – pipeline route to sea? Texan oilspill karma?

At least we are lucky. Our PM, within 100 days of service, has established the Ministry of Energy, Green Technology and Water, and later the Government Transformation Plan. After all, Islam IS Greenpeace. Muslims greet each other with Salaam (peace). So do Jews with their Shalom for that matter. Going back to Nabi Ibrahim (Abraham) a.s., my understanding is that Arabs and Jews are brothers through Nabi Ismail a.s. and Nabi Ishak a.s. respectively. If we go back to Nabi Adam a.s. we are all brothers! And what colour does the Quran promise we get to see in heaven, God allowing? Green.

Actually, imagine at 22, holding a Bachelor in Industrial Economics from University of Nottingham (Robin Hood country!) holding a job at PETRONAS and suddenly having to enter politics cos your father passed away from a heart attack whilst in office as PM? THAT is sacrifice for the nation.

And our PM although Second Generation talks sense compared to George W. Bush with his “make no mistake” repetitive repertoire after 9/11 – his father George Bush Snr. spoke a whole lot more sense, but then again he had served as Director of CIA. Has anyone noticed they took turns sitting on the Boards of Texan Oilcos? Fahrenheit 911 is fabulous – did George W. Bush make his first million from Carlyle Group in which Bin Laden group had invested? George Bush Snr was allegedly senior advisor until 2003 but still shareholder. Carlyle Capital has since collapsed from the US sub-prime defaults. Again, karma ... although US$16.6b default was reportedly “minimal financial loss” to Carlyle Group ... And what about the insider trading?

Agreed the world should focus on the war in reversing crimes against nature which led to Global Warming, rather than nit-picking like our “opposition” do. Karma ...

First afterthought on 18 July 2010:

Let's not EVER have to endure another war cos some Republican President wants to SHIFT FOCUS from USA's economic woes (Black Monday 1987, dotcom crash 2000 or whatever) and allegedly make money from defence spending ...

Btw suicide bombers are getting better at targeting security personnel instead of innocent women and children but then again why do muslims have to fight muslims in Iraq, after all Shiah only make up around 15% of the world's muslims, and noone knows FOR SURE which of the 72 sects will go to heaven anyway ... weren't we meant to be SECTLESS in the first place?

Second afterthought on 18 July 2010:

Btw has anyone realised that armed separatists in Aceh and Sri Lanka practically got wiped out in the Tsunamis of 2004? Karma? Suggests that jihad of the sword is NOT the way, jihad of the pen is. (Added here - I understand that the true meaning of jihad is STRIVE).

Nowadays the frequency of earthquakes, tsunamis, floods and landslides is alarming. North Pole polar ice cap is melting, Mount Everest snow and Alpine glaciers are melting. The ice used to float or used to be on the mountains. To what extent has the extra weight of water seeped into undersea cracks in the earth's crust and affected the shifting of the tectonic plates?

Since my private chat to moderator of that website on 19 July 2010 was published whilst the above were not, told them I'd post my comments elsewhere, and I believe this blogsite like our esteemed Tun M aka Che Det has GUTS.

Salaam (greenpeace).

P/S If I recall correctly, Abdullah Yusuf Ali in one of the Appendix to his translation of the Quran suggested that the Greek Island of Santorini suffered some calamity (explosion/flooding?) at the time of the parting of the Red Sea to allow Nabi Musa a.s. to pass through (Pharaoh's body was saved as a sign and other sources suggest the Pharaoh of the Exodus is Menerptah evidenced by water in his lungs but died of extreme shock). In a Discovery Channel doco of an archaeological dig on that island it appeared the inhabitants fled suddenly, there are suggestions these are the Sea People referred to in Egyptian scrolls. Who are these Sea People? some suggest Philistines aka Palestinians. So who got to Canaan first and whose homes were displaced to allow Nabi Musa's followers to get to Canaan after the 40 years in the wilderness - their own fault for worshipping Baal the Golden Cow despite Nabi Harun a.s. telling them not to!

Should anyone be interested to read more (possible connections between Malays the Bani Jawi of old and Sea Peoples) please refer to my comment of 7 May 2010 8.22am on that website.

Further comment of yesterday still awaiting moderation in response to Hang Tuah and Mama Mia on that site as follows, we need our Ustadzs to be paid to translate Arabic texts faster to shed further light on our culture for CULTURAL TOURISM e.g. Istanbul Capital of Culture 2010 (apparently wau bulan teraju tiga refers to the 3 Nusas of Peninsular, Island and Mainland South East Asia) - btw why is Ministry of Tourism separate from Ministry of Culture - any scope in further reducing administrative burden by combining it under the Old Guard?:

Actually Hang Tuah and Mama Mia, let's stop this ding dong. Let's fix it. Tell us what you think the Education system should be like.

I personally think that it should support children to do the best in what they like the best and to the capacity that they can achieve. Then Malaysia would become a VERY PRODUCTIVE nation full of people who do what they like best! (happy people have better quality of life, yes?). Every person has a purpose in life and every person contributes to society even the guy who picks up your solid waste and looks after sewerage treatment plants. Even in the worse case a crime lord pays his people, who spends their money in the economy in order to live they have to be fed, clothed, sheltered, transported. Wouldn't go that route though – watch the doco on Albert Bruno and other mafia heads getting killed by John Gotti.

I wish that children were taught to think POSITIVELY in school and that every child is taught how to THINK and UNDERSTAND instead of MEMORISING and PARROTING. The purpose is to equip them with the SKILLS to manage CHALLENGES throughout life. I wish every child were taught to mind map and speed read (within their capabilities). And taught exam techniques (get easy ones done first, hard ones later). And the thing with smart but lazy kids is they have to be told what is the PURPOSE of what they are learning and HOW it can help them later in life (momentum for driving, vectors for sea (AND AIR) navigation, forces for operating cranes etc). Sort of an introduction to each lesson, with example of jobs using them. Guide enough for curriculum?

I also wish that children were taught how to interact with each other in a tolerant and peaceful manner and that school activities promote understanding between races, unity and love for Malaysia. Thus I'm not keen on segregating children into Chinese and Tamil schools. I wish children were taught if not in 4 languages, at the least textbooks be in both English and Malay and children had a choice whether to answer exams in English or Malay. This could allow all children to master both languages faster through the side by side translations. Malay may have been the trading lingua franca of Melaka half a millenium ago but we all have to acknowledge that English is the language of the internet a primary source of research and knowledge. Furthermore when I visited Penang last year hotel staff be of any race weren't proficient in English! How to serve tourists? Each spend around RM2,000 per visit and we had around 23 million last year, could be more if we employed our Ustadzs to translate Arabic texts and get better background into our culture and the interdependency of mainland, peninsular and island South East Asia.

And to make sure EVERYONE has a job, let's make sure we PLAN our target industries and services, how many people we need and offer University courses based on that.

My understanding is that the underlying theme of the Quran is THINK and REFLECT. One can envision the future by reflecting on the past (just by thinking of the IDEAL and fixing whatever needs to be fixed!). Try thinking back to the events that happened in your life and see what you learnt from it and why things happened WHEN they happened, God is the best planner and you may realise that things happened AT THE BEST TIME for them to happen. Then you will FEEL the LOVE of God – imagine God arranging the lives (and the effects of each person's decisions/free will) of almost 7 billion people in this world alone (Arabic tradition in Lore of the Light suggests 70,000 worlds between the legs of the Throne (Kursi) – and no wonder the Angels have to go to and from the Tablet to carry out God's commands – depending on each human being's decision?) especially if you watch docos on astrophysics – the latest is on the telescope in Antarctica (aren't we PROUD of the Malaysian boy who used to cycle to the internet cafe somewhere in Pahang and won a trip to Antarctica?) capturing images of thousands of galaxies having gone back in time (takes LIGHT years for the past to be seen from earth NOW) to see star formations – and you realise what an absolute minute tiny spec you are in the Universe! (And what about the Universes beyond the black holes?). And God loves everyone not just muslims – we start everything by saying In the name of Allah, Most Gracious, Most Merciful – Rahman (Gracious) to muslims and Rahim (Merciful) to everyone. Else non-Muslims won't have food! Ask the Sufis e.g. read Jalaluddin Rumi et al.

Christian taxi drivers in Jordan refer to God as Allah. It's not our God and your God – there is only ONE God otherwise there would be chaos like in the movie Clash of the Titans. Even Balinese Hindu temples have a high chair for the Supreme Being (just read decent travel books).

Elsewhere in this blogsite I mentioned that IgA in the body which enhances the immunity system increases with POSITIVE thinking and decreases with anger. Going back to astrophysics and seeing the events of the Universe many billion years ago through the telescope. Apart from stars, planets, black holes, galaxies, pulsars there is also dark matter and dark energy. Nowadays people use radio telescopes to look that far back, picking up electromagnetic waves from those events. Now just imagine that speaking nicely is a harmonious sound akin to music and speaking with anger is a noisy discordant chaotic sound. What if in the future instrumentation is so precise that they can hear our speech now. Let's not be remembered as noisy, discordant and chaotic!

Apologise for my rambling or if I offended anyone. Point is – let's blog POSITIVELY and CONSTRUCTIVELY rather than NEGATIVELY and DESTRUCTIVELY. Let's change the tide of public opinion on the web and be of service to mankind which I believe is our purpose in life.

There is plenty of scope for using the internet and blogsites to promote global peace, environmental awareness and solutions. Let's unite the world and reverse Global Warming!

Salaam (greenpeace).

P/S Mama Mia let's not argue for the sake of arguing ... internet noise, remember! And Hang Tuah perhaps you may wish to consider seeking to understand in order to be understood. If I recall history correctly – in hindsight, pity your namesake didn't trust his friend Hang Jebat enough to discuss with him before disappearing albeit under false accusations – that could have avoided Hang Jebat's palace amok and treason in the first place! Fixing from within may be better than from without. For one thing, the whole world need not know about it! I suppose the problem is gatekeepers the impediment to direct channels ... like the rabbis of old wanted to keep God's name secret – to further their own self-importance i.e. self-interest? Food for thought.

Afterthought to the above comment still awaiting moderation:

P/S If we scrap UPSR, how do we fill our boarding schools? If we scrap PMR, how do our children practice for SPM? Too risky isn't it?

Comment still awaiting moderation on <http://bangmalaysia.wordpress.com/2010/07/24/msias-increasing-unattractiveness-is-karma/> refers (actually "plagiarised" from Hang Tuah (scriptwriter got the characters confused from too much blogging!):

Salaam (greenpeace).

Have commented elsewhere in this blog that firstly, does it have to be DIRECT foreign investment, have we considered that INDIRECT foreign investment could possibly better raise Malaysian Gross National Income (GNI) and promote transfer of technology. Secondly, does World Bank Income Classifications reflect reality – as far as we can see, even USA has rural areas, Malaysia had 88.7% of its population considered urban (served by a local authority) in Census 2000, China urban only surpassed rural a few weeks ago, our infrastructure highways LRT etc are reminiscent of the drive from Narita to Ginza, Tokyo, and we have plenty of noisy issue raising bloggers (wish they were all EDUCATED) and other irrepressible social ills so obviously we ARE developed.

If anything, reformation for the sake of it does not create jobs, the supposed alternative can't even look after state sand resources, the issues raised by them are nitpicking bad press leading to further bad image, and having an uneasy opposition from opposite poles makes it hard to get things through and DONE, especially when people are focused on politicking rather than national development. Rather than precipitating Herd Mentality as propagated in George Soros' Theory of Reflexivity to the negative, why don't we all start writing POSITIVELY, after all, thinking positive increases IgA in the body and enhances the immunity system whereas anger decreases it.

Wish every blog page that dares show Malaysia up (can't believe it's Malaysians showing Malaysia up – where is your LOYALTY? Have you forgotten the RUKUNEGARA btw why is it not on the back of every school exercise book like it used to be) also provides the SOLUTIONS. Then only does the article qualify as CONSTRUCTIVE rather than DESTRUCTIVE.

Salaam (greenpeace).

P/S please refer elsewhere in this blog have suggested how Islam IS Greenpeace.

Afterthought to the above comment:

The internet is a tool accessed by the world lets all STRIVE (the true meaning of Jihad) to change the tide of public opinion and promote global peace and environmental awareness by filling it up with POSITIVE and CONSTRUCTIVE rather than NEGATIVE and DESTRUCTIVE blogs.

Assalamualaikum buat Tun

Semoga Tun seisi keluarga sihat agar dapat terus menyumbang bakti buat Malaysia dan dunia Islam.

"Saya tak tahu mengapa mereka (muslimin) membenci kita"

Soalan yang penuh hipokrit. Kononnya mereka berada dipihak yang teraniaya, kononnya umat Islam lah menjadi punca kepada segala masalah dan konflik di muka bumi ini.

Sebenarnya dia (Bush) tahu mengapa we hate them. Setelah melakukan berbagai fitnah, provokasi dan menyemarakkan kemarahan umat Islam...buat-buat tak tahu dan menanya pula why they(muslims) hate us.

Semua negara dipaksa mengikut telunjuk dan ada dengan cara "arm twisting". Inilah demokrasi yang Bush banggakan....inilah freedom of speach and act yang dibanggakan. Freedom untuk mereka membuli negara lain yang lemah dan menanggung segala kekayaan di negara tersebut.

Harap Tun yang pernah menjadi ketua negara dapat mendedahkan dengan terperinci perbuatan "arm twisting" yang diamalkan oleh Amerika ke atas negara negara lain agar mengikut telunjuknya. Biar semua orang tahu yang banyak negara sebenarnya dipaksa menyokong segala perbuatan dan polisi keji Amerika.

Wassalam

amerika and britain dah diperkuda oleh israel..
why them?

becoz these are the most powerfull country in the world.

how to break this relations?

muslim (extremist) will say... lets do jihad and bombed them.. (but the reality is.. they bombed themself!)

muslim (liberal) will say... lets settle it in democracy way..

- but pls remember, israel IS THE BEAST! there is NO WAY to settle it down via democracy..

muslim (minority) will say... lets tied together (with other muslim country) and 'preasure' the israel thru economic war..

- but pls remember, the cristian and jews like already know this would happen.. and we're now too late already.

muslim (out of the box's thinking) will say... lets associates with 'the sleeping tigers'.. like russia, germany, italy and japan.

America's think they can inject them with 'drug' ..

BUT we can wake them up..

Dear Tun,

I beg to differ. The "War on Terror" is not a war on Muslims. It's a fabricated war to enrich Bush and his cronies. It's a war purely to generate income for the US military industrial complex. And they used 911 as a pretext to start the war. When the main instigator of a war is its main benefactor, you can see the linkage immediately. I'm of course referring to Haliiburton's CEO Mr. Cheney.

You're right, there's also an Israeli connection. They didn't want to take down Saddam themselves and they had their agents in Wolfowitz and Perl who were the main architects of the "war." But without the money connection for Cheney and his cronies, there would have been no "war."

Good morning Ayahanda Tun,

Review system first

By DR. RANJIT SINGH MALHI

1. I VIEW with concern the rationale and assertions propounded by the Education Ministry and other stakeholders regarding the proposal to abolish the Ujian Pencapaian Sekolah Rendah (UPSR) and Penilaian Menengah Rendah (PMR) examinations.

2. Most shocking was the assertion that "the teaching and learning methods will remain the same".

3. We are definitely barking up the wrong tree! Scrapping the two public examinations and maintaining the existing teaching and learning methods are definitely not the panacea to what ails our education system or the long-lasting solutions for creating a more holistic education.

4. Let's be "brutally" honest. The products of our school system are generally ill-prepared either for higher education, work or life in general.

5. Most of our undergraduates are not goal-orientated, have poor analytical and writing skills, fear public speaking, and have been “conditioned” by our schooling system to be spoon-fed.

6. Employers continually complain that our secondary school students and graduates lack self-confidence, communication skills, a strong work ethic, interpersonal skills, and are poor team players.

7. It is not the two public examinations that are at fault. It is the “what” and “how” of our examinations (assessment) that need a major overhaul together with our instructional strategies (besides having truly competent teachers and effective academic leadership).

8. The questions in UPSR and PMR focus on lower-order thinking (recall of factual knowledge) which, consequently, fosters rote learning in schools.

9. This is not surprising because assessment drives learning; it is the nature of the assessment tasks that primarily influences students’ orientation to learning.

10. Hence, teachers focus on preparing students for exams, instead of preparing them for life and the workplace.

11. Our educational system (including tertiary education) generally promotes surface and passive learning instead of deep and active learning which are crucial for creating a quality learning environment.

12. My interaction with teachers over the last decade reveal that the vast majority of them have no clear understanding of critical thinking.

13. Hence, it is not surprising that teachers seldom pose higher-order questions to students.

14. The ministry needs to review the current assessment system in schools in the context of systemic change, and not as a piecemeal approach. The pertinent questions that the ministry should be ruminating on are as follows:

- Do we have explicit desired learning outcomes for our schools?
- Do current instructional strategies and assessment methods promote quality learning and holistic development of students?
- Do schools promote self-directed, independent and lifelong learning?
- Do schools provide adequate formative assessment to bring out the best in learners?
- Do schools promote deep learning and active learning?
- Do our schools have high-quality teachers and school leaders?
- Is there a constructive alignment between learning outcomes, teaching and learning activities, and the assessment tasks?

15. It may be wise for the ministry to first begin with the end in mind by determining explicitly the desired learning outcomes.

16. Learning outcomes are specific statements describing what students should know, understand or be able to do, as a result of learning.

17. In this regard, I would like to propose that schools should help students to be goal-orientated with high self-esteem and resilience; strong and persuasive communication skills (both oral and written); problem-solving and critical-thinking skills; interpersonal skills and teamwork; emotional intelligence; ethics/citizenship; information literacy; and lifelong learning skills.

18. Second, we need to review the existing curriculum. The ministry should explore the possibility of reducing the number of core subjects and eliminating unimportant content. The trend worldwide is to reduce disciplinary content to the core essentials and to focus on student understanding and application of core knowledge based upon the famous mantra propounded by Professor Howard Gardner, "In a lecture, less is more."

19. Third, the ministry needs to ensure that teachers are competent enough to utilise appropriate teaching and learning strategies that will contribute towards attaining the intended learning outcomes.

20. Teachers need to focus more on active learning (role plays, dramas, brainstorming, debates, case studies, reflective journals) and cooperative learning (group presentations, problem solving in teams) which foster critical thinking, teamwork and interpersonal skills.

21. Fourth, we must ensure that schools provide adequate formative assessment (assessment for learning). Students need frequent feedback that emphasises continuous learning and self-evaluative reflection. We should also promote authentic learning in our schools where learners are given adequate opportunities to actively apply what they know to meaningful, real-life tasks.

22. Fifth, we need to develop a good and varied system of assessment (including student projects, performance tasks and student portfolios) that measure a broad range of student abilities (e.g. critical thinking, effective communication, teamwork) besides core disciplinary knowledge, attitudes and values. In this regard, the ministry can determine an appropriate mix of school-based and nationwide assessments (public exams).

23. Student projects, student portfolios, product assessment (e.g. written essays, paintings or posters), assessment of personal qualities and performance assessments (e.g. oral presentation, teamwork) are best administered at the school level with explicit guidelines and scoring criteria (perhaps including monitoring) formulated by the ministry to ensure some semblance of uniformity among schools.

24. Sixth, both the ministry and schools must ensure that there is a constructive alignment between learning outcomes, teaching and learning activities, and the assessment tasks.

25. Seventh, the core business of schools is to promote quality teaching and learning which is dependent on having truly competent and dedicated teachers.

26. The million dollar question here is whether the ministry is hiring the right candidates to join its teaching force or has teacher quality been sacrificed in favour of non-meritocratic factors.

27. Take heed that no amount of educational reforms will bring about substantial improvement in the quality of our education system without having competent and dedicated teachers.

28. I am in favour of retaining both the UPSR and PMR examinations.

29. We need standardised nationwide exams to ensure school accountability and a uniform measure to ensure results are fair and comparable.

30. It should be noted that Singapore (renowned for its high-quality educational system) has a primary school leaving examination to determine competence for secondary education.

31. What needs to be reviewed are the "what" and "how" of assessing student learning and deciding an optimal blend of school-based assessment and public examinations.

■ Dr Ranjit Singh Malhi is an educationist, consultant, trainer and history book author. He has also authored books in the areas of total quality management, management development and personal development.

Good day Ayahanda Tun, let us hope that MOE will take these facts into consideration in upgrading and re-reviewing the national school system....to maintain harmony and development of the country. And the final conclusion from the perspective of a muslim is.....

//16. It is important that the Americans know and admit the true reasons for the hatred against them. It is important because until they do they will not be able to come up with any solution to the present costly war. This war can go on forever because future generations of Palestinians, of Muslims, will never forget the injustice inflicted on them by Americans.//

What about the non-muslims....and we prefer to continue the national education system as point 16 in the way of Muslims Buddhists, Christians, and Hindus which can go on forever with no national solutions but costly to build our future in Malaysia????

Assalamualikum buat Tun yang dikasihi,

"I DON'T KNOW WHY THEY HATE US" kata Bush.....soalan ini sepatutnya kita orang Islam yang tanya kepada Bush dan sekutu sekutu yang sama waktu dengan nya.

Saya amat percaya bahawa segala kacau bilau yang berlaku di dunia ini adalah angkara mereka dan sekutunya....bila orang Islam bertindak melawan, maka orang Islam dicap sbg teroris....saya kagum dan hormat kepada saudara saudara muslimin dan muslimat yang berani mengorbankan diri demi agama dan tanah air mereka....tak kira walau dicap sbg teroris....sebenarnya mereka ini adalah pejuang tulin yang CAKAP SERUPA BIKIN. Mereka sentiasa membuat berbagai provokasi agar orang tersilap langkah lalu memberi laluan kepada mereka untuk menyerang dan mengecap orang Islam sbg teroris.

Sekian,

Moga Tun berdua sentiasa dilindungi Allah dan sihat sentiasa.

Dear Tun Dr M,

This is a Non Christian and Non Muslim perspective

You have raised the obvious issue that is threatening the world peace and order today. I too, really ask to myself frequently what is wrong with these communities. They hate each other, fear each other, despise each other, suspect each other, kill each other etc.

Many who have studied history or theology, would know that this conflict between these two communities dates back to Nabi Ibrahim's time, where he had two sons i.e. Ishmael, the eldest son born to his Egyptian servant (Hagar) and the 2nd son Ishak through his wife Sarah. The rivalry between the Jews and the Arabs widened.

Though, both these religions are from the same tree of belief, but the Muslims added an additional Prophet i.e. Muhammad and considered him the last prophet. However, the Jews and the Christians did not endorse this. The rift went further because of this.

However, the Muslims believe that, due to god's grace the barren land of Arab was found to have huge deposits of petroleum.

The US and its allies played pivotal role "Hands Of God" by helping the Jews to acquire "The Promised Land" as mentioned in the Bible. However, this land happened to be part of Palestine. This made the rift between Islam and Christianity worse. This particular act of the Christians and Jews have really made the Muslims, logically and understandably, hate them in modern times.

The injustice done by the US and the Israel to the Muslim communities are made to look as "self defence". The media controlled by the west made Muslims seem as barbaric and illogical.

Just for an example, during the September 11 attack around 3000 people died (our sympathies go to their souls). The whole world condemned this act as barbaric and mourned together with the Americans. The impression on Muslims, in general, became very negative. However, it was not the Muslim community that launched that attack but it was one terrorist group which launched it. Sadly, the group was a Muslim terrorist group led by Osama Bin Laden of Yemen.

Many Muslims feel just because my fellow Muslim did some crime, I should not be ill-treated. However, that is the case now. In retaliation to the Sept 11 attack, Bush engaged war on Iraq and Afghanistan. The whole world watched and it is still watching the atrocities of US and its allies on those 2 Muslim countries. It is confirmed that more than 100,000 have died (May their souls rest in peace). What do you call this? Iraq didn't possess any nuclear weapons as alleged by the US. Can they return back the lives of the dead? The whole world seem not bothered about this but "still mourn" over those dead during September 11 attack just because they witnessed it through CNN, CNBC, Bloomberg etc.

Some rich Muslim nations kept their distance from these conflicts (afraid to lose ties with US). They only provided relief aids just like the rest of the world. These selfish Muslim countries must be shunned by the Muslims around the world.

Even Muslim communities need to take responsibility of their ill-treatment by the west (mainly Christians). Their religious practice varies not only from countries to countries, sects to sects and from groups to groups. No doubt, generally, they practice their religion moderately but there are some who go over board and are too orthodox (even the Muslims themselves shun them). You can't be wearing veil covering the entire body (Purdah) except the eyes (even that too is sometimes hid with transparent cloth). In today's scenario, security is tight and they should know who is exactly is coming in and going out of their country. Even for the human movement within the country security check is done by certain countries.

The US and its allies should do some soul searching as to why some individuals, with wife and children, strap bomb around their body and execute suicide bombing (though the casualties in this type of attack is minor). Why he has such greater feeling of hatred and anger against them?

The predominantly Christian nations apply double standard. On one hand they orchestrate FREEDOM of this and FREEDOM of that. On the other hand, they say you cannot wear this and cannot wear that. They also say you cannot do this and do that!

I am sorry to say this, but I need to be fair to both sides. There seem no standard practice and rules in the Muslim community. There are a lot of variations and difference in the practice of Islam. Which is correct and which is not even the Muslims themselves are often are not sure.

Just like the Vatican City which controls the practice of Catholics, the Muslim community too need the practice their religion streamlined and standardized by establishing a powerful and authoritative institution.

Lastly, what I gather, from my personal reading & observation, both Christians and Muslims have strong prejudice against each other due to historical reasons. This could only be reduced (I cannot say eradicated to be realistic) if mutual trust, respect and help is launched in a grand scale. The coward rich Muslim nations should come forward and state their stand on the fate of Middle East. The US and its allies should come off their "superiority complex" and address this situation gentlemanly and sincerely.

Saya hairan kenapa dimana ada konflik mesti ada campur tangan Amerika. Kononnya untuk membantu. Contohnya Korea Selatan dan Utara. Tiba-tiba ada pulak Amerika yang jauh nun sibuk nak tolong K.Selatan. Penah tak terfikir yang bom kapal tu sebenarnya Amerika. Penah tak terfikir yang talibarut dia ada kat setiap negara. Penah tak terfikir yang pengebom berani mati tu sebenarnya talibarut Amerika. Mungkin yang berani mati tu bukan orang dia tetapi mangsa yang diperalat oleh Talibarutnya. Saya tak fikir orang islam akan mengebom di tempat awam. Semestinya ada yang menghasut dan merancang untuk dijadikan alasan. Dan yang melakukan adalah orang2 yang diperalatkan dan dikata atas nama Islam. Modus operandi nya sama dimana2. Mesti ada dua puak yang bertelagah dan Amerika masuk campur menyebelahi sebelah pihak kononnya pengaman, tapi bukan dengan cara aman sebaliknya berperang. Kiralah berapa ramai orang awam mati di iraq sebab salah aim katanya. Saya rasa elok lagi Sadam Husin memerintah. Setiap negara berbeza cara hidupnya. oleh itu hanya kepimpinan rakyatnya yang faham dan boleh membentuknya. Tak bolehlah memerintah Iraq dengan cara demokrasi Amerika. Pernah tak terfikir kenapa setiap ada masalah di negara lain tiba2 ada wakil Amerika bagi sepatah dua kata. Saya rasa Whitehouse ni da macam memerintah dunia pulak. Banyak sidang akbar diorang berkisarkan negara-negara lain. Sokong K.selatan lah, nuklear Iran lah, Kosovo lah, Pemisah Filipina lah, Junta Myanmar lah, Cina lah, afganistan, pakistanlah. banyak lah lg suma dia nk masuk campur. negara diorang ni dah perfect sngt ke. Tak boleh ke Amerika duk diam-diam buat hal negara sindrik. Masalah negara lain biar la diorang selesai sindrik. Nak berniaga buat cara nk berniaga. tak perlulah duit dalam poket clients pun nk tolong kira. dia tau la nk kira sindrik. Kesimpulannya semua konflik2 yang berlaku di bumi ni adalah angkara Amerika samada melalui talibarutnya, perisiknya, atau dengan memberi upah yang tak mampu ditolak. dan talibarut atau penyamar yang diupah ini akan menyamar dan membayar org bawahan untuk buat kerja.dan semestinya orang bawahan ini adalah rakyat yang kesempitan tidak tau apa2 dan diumpam dengan nama jihad. mungkin nmpak mcm cerita filem. tapi apa yang ada dalam filem boleh berlaku di dunia sebenar dan mungkin filem itu sengaja diambil dari cerita sebenar...

it's not muslims who started the conflict but the americans. it's not muslims who hated americans in the first place, but the americans. war against terrorism is actually not only a war against muslims. the truth is, it is the war against the whole of Islam. teachings of Islam, Islamic laws, guidance, and a way of life. and muslim ummah.

Ha Ha Ha.... is there a true democracy in America. ??? They just support the Israel Government and not even consider the democracy/majority votes of the United Nation members. They also invaded Afghanistan/Iraq without the majority support of the United Nation members. So sorry ....America you just a good Dog to Israel.

Freedom ...there is no freedom in Palestine . And no freedom for American Government to do the right things. Again America is just a good dog to Israel.

However there are few muslim countries just being good obedient puppies to American and sad to say no Freedom. No freedom even for United Nation.

Must get rid of the Veto power in United Nation and get rid of the Swiss /Offshore Banks where all those dirty moneys being use to kill the democracy/freedom.

Dear Tun,

If we put religion aside, the American is much to hate if they back the Israelis in the act of non-humanitarian. Being human, we ought to have some value of humanitarian, which means to respect others' freedom and human rights. But the Israelis do not respect that and they are not worthy to be put as friend or even humans. And those who supported they should get the same treatment.

Regards.

YABhg Tun Dr. M & all chedet's fellow

The former President said that the Muslims hate America and the American. But actually and in fact not at all. Particularly the moderate who think that democracy though have an ugly side still deliver benefits to Muslims.

Hatred among Muslims mounted after the U.S & Co with of course Israel the Criminal put Palestinian in to catastrophe since many years ago. While United Nations turn to "cave man" and now become UNITED NOTHING.

I know the American and its President - even the current President -know that the root cause of Muslims hatred on them is caused by Israel. But they don't dare to confess to the world because America now is under Israel finger. Even in making government decision. Israel lobbyist always around the corner with their AIPAC "protocol" in their briefcase.

Joseph Stiglitz also write in his renowned book though America preach democracy, open market economy, deregulation and etc at abroad particularly in Muslims country, the don't practice it in America because the White House administration grueling to its ugly side that put America into failure.

Hatred of Muslims on American is a blind sentiment which at the same time being a propaganda to influenced non-Muslim countries to follow the blind sentiment.

America know by being International Terrorist - together with Israel - they can get lucrative profit. Because every cause that occurred on this earth rewards an effect which favour them. Killing the Muslim - in Palestin, Afghanistan and etc - means that oil, fuel, WMD, army, killing machine and ect is SOLD OFF to the highest bidder of course the Israel.

The truth is out there one day. Where the America and its President "kow tow" to the dictum of LION FOR LAMBS.

Dear Tun,

We have to continue in every ways and within our capacity to inform the people of the United States of America to support Palestinien. Let the leaders of USA make silly of themselves but not the people.

The Americans can contribute by :-

1. Transfer online money to Peace Foundation organised by Malaysia.
2. Send in Medical equipments and medicines by airmail to MERCY, Malaysia.

We will help them help the Palestinien.

At least we got something from their people if not from their leaders.

Cheers.

Dear Tun,

I respect and share some of your views towards the Americans. Frankly speaking, I don't hate the American people but disagree with their government policy. There is no doubt that the United States is the most powerful nation on earth and there is no country from the G4 who dares to go against them. The United Nation and Nato are just mere puppets to the Americans. We might as well stop paying the membership fees to the United Nation. Only the weak who have no other choice, will strapped their bodies with bombs and blow themselves up to retaliate. At least there is one country who dares to defy the Americans with nuclear attack, North Korea. There is also Iran where I truly have great admiration to their president who is not afraid of the Americans. The president of Venezuela is another tough talking of anti-American policy. I hope Tun will form an alliance with these great leaders and oppress the American government. You can forget about the rich Muslim countries from the Gulf. There are all afraid of the Americans.

I hope Tun will take care of your health because we need a strong leader who can voice out the misdeeds of the Americans.

Long live Tun.

We used to love USA through their propaganda in movies etc championing the world as superhero. However, since the Isrealis invasion and cruelties towards Palestinians were extensively exposed to the world and knowing very well that US being one of their closest allies and supporter, Muslims have started to open their eyes and slowly beginning to dislike US.

p/s Holland was my favorite team in world cup until I learned that they supported Israel. So I shifted to Spain! It was the right choice!

We all luv u Tun. Take good care of urself and Tun Hasmah...

The US have been a very busy country. They have been in almost every war regional or world. It plays role of mediator and labeled aggressor as well in countries that inhibit oppressions to its own people, and dictatorial leaderships. They have been involved in civil wars, and being policing trouble-nations. But why must they be there? Is the US the only force around that could mediate all these troubles? Is there another country or organization that the rest of the world would listen to?

Being a supporter of the Israel in the latter's oppression against the people of Palestine must have been seen as a direct aggression against the Muslim and the Islam religion since there is no concrete reason for Israel to behave what it is now. One would ask why are not the neighborhood Arabs doing something to help its brothers and sister across the desert? Surely they are rich and resourceful enough to have show its might to the Israel. Surely they could economically stave this aggressor country fairly easily, no? Why have they stood silence on this? And why not the Jhadians also focused their attention to these countries that have stood silence all this while?

What is actually the main reason for the Israel to have acted what it did?

I am not supporting the US nor the aggression against the people of Palestine by the Israel, but merely curious as to why these Arab countries are not concerted in its effort to stem the wrath of the Israel and bring peace to this region. Why aren' they opted to take up the policing role of its neighborhood?

OIC should be more vocal in this, and be firm to draw a line on the Israel's aggression, and be ready to take over the policing role.

Salam bahagia.

Not to mention that the western subsidy and aids in every aspects given to israel that they can afford to use the extra resources against the palestinian people. Germany especially has given much out of guilt to israel in military terms, such as subsidising the costs of submarines to israel, etc. Another thing is that what palestinian/hamas and other terrorist groups do to other innocents doesn't make things right. If ones do wrong, should we also do the same?

By truthseekerAuthor Profile Page on July 24, 2010 1:31 PM

Salam Tun and fellow bloggers,

I dare say all American leaders know why all decent people, especially the muslims hate them, but;

1. these leaders need the jews' support to be in power and making money.
2. these leaders know most of its citizens are the social-type. Social-type people likes to deal with feeling, helping others, so by saying 'i don't know why...' that statement will go deep into those social-types people of america. The psychologists are behind this. Remember 'desert shield?' 'to protect the people?' 'our duty to protect the innocents..', 'war against terrorism..'Wake up the people of America! These leaders are riding on
3. these leaders know most of its citizens are ignorant. The 'ministry of education' in USA is not doing a favour to the people...it may sounds funny and illogical, but how come great country like that produces people who are ignorant about what's going on in this world? they cannot differentiate between an iranian and the sikhs! they thought people with last name 'hussein' must be saddam hussein's relatives, someone with his last name 'singh' must be a vietnamese! they dont know where is malaysia, do we live on trees? In my opinion, the leaders purposely want their people to be ignorant, therefore must depend on them (the leaders).
4. Related to para 3, during USSR's days, the american leaders frightened its people of the russians attacking them, then when the russians became weak, they frightened their own people with muslims terrorism...it will never end cos it works. No doubt those americans who're educated do realized the truth, but there is still a big number of ignorants...they believed in what their leaders said...'i dont know why...' the idiots believed him.
5. The malays are mostly a bunch of social people...that's why when somebody played with their feelings, they're easily influenced - remember anwar with black eyes? it affected their feelings and the result? malays splited 3 ways during the 1999 election. But the chineses mostly are not sociable type, but the business type, so they supported BN cos BN helped them in their biz.

My suggestion - get help from the psychologists!

By putrasingaAuthor Profile Page on July 24, 2010 12:40 PM

Actually, America doesn't care whether muslims hate them or not. All they want is to make Jurusalem as the capital of Israel and soon the Zionist Israel will become Superpower replacing the bankrupt USA.

I fully agree with you Dr. Mahathir Mohammad. It is great to see that the United States under Barack Obama has now upgraded the Palestine Liberation Organization Office in Washington D.C. into a General Delegation. This means that the U.S. has recognized Palestine as an independent state. But this is not a full diplomatic recognition like Russia and China have done. I know that it is terrible for the crazy Israel-firsters who are the new breed of fascists. It has nothing to do with Islam which is a good peacefull religion as the stupid evil fascist Dr. Srdja Trifkovic (2002) has written in both his stupid books "Sword of the Prophet" and "Defeating Jihad" (2006). Both of these books are propaganda. They are like Adolph Hitler's Mein Kampf and the Protocols of the Elders of Zion. This from a man who defended a violent Christian terrorist and genocidal maniac named Radovan Karadic and Ratko Mladic. Karadic is on trial by the way. I am so glad that he was forced to "resign" from Chronicles Magazine (he was in fact fired by the great Justin Raimondo who knows that it is Israel and not Islam that is the bigger threat to the World. Also it is AIPAC and not CAIR that is dangerous). I hope that arrest this villian Dr. Trifkovic and charge him for encouraging genocide against Muslims. I hope you do the same as well against this evil Serbian pro-Israeli and anti-Islamic columnist.

To the lopsided and unjust support of the Zionists I would add Kashmir and Chechnya as major irritants. The Americans encouraged and funded most of the very people who are now labeled as terrorists, some for that matter do deserve the label. In the cold war years the Americans funded most so called right wing religious organizations and called these as the biggest insurance against spread of Communism, this also proved partly right as these organizations along with Pakistan and US funding did stop the communist advance in Afghanistan and even caused the eventual collapse of the Soviet Union , in the process the Americans in support of the extreme Deoband and Salafi schools evoked the Jihad concept and supported the incorrect thesis that all war is Jihad. .Having used the Muslim right and fringe the Americans promptly dumped these as soon as the purpose was served .The Muslim parties and organizations were naive and got hurt in the process .

There is a strong under current of religion in American thought , much more than say Europe who also behave as Christians when it matters (Turkeys entry to EU would be an example).

The Muslims are disorganized , venal and incompetents governments have made the Islamic world as underdeveloped as Africa. Most if these venal regimes and monarchies are fully supported by the Americans, this is deliberate.

The competition to the Americans comes form the Far East and BRICs but nine of these have a philosophy behind there success , there is no International order or system that these countries support or promote , Islam seems to be the only viable challenge to the Christian tradition or thought . The Americans wish to dilute and destroy the Islamic thought process, I have never come across any American initiative to support modernistic and progressive interpretations of the Koran, there have been many in the past and even present.

Ayahanda Tun,

I DON'T KNOW WHY THEY HATE US.

Malaysian Insider, Tengku Razaleigh had claimed....

15. "He means well when he goes down for his walkabouts, like how he went to Petaling street. But how many people (Malaysians) live in Petaling Street? Its full of foreigners," quipped Tengku Razaleigh.

Comment:

Does every bloggers know that now Petaling Street is under DAP Constituent?

Since DAP took over, the foreign and local visitor turnover have declined to 50% according DAP Mr Apanama as reported by a Bahasa Mandarin local press.

Since tsumani 308, Petaling Street businesses have dropped, did DAP come up with any rational and solid strategies to improve the businesses of Petaling Street?

I guess DAP did not and it was already proven that DAP Chief Secretary and CM Penang, Mr Lim Guan Eng did not want to cooperate with the Federal Government.

Because of this incident, one of the Chinese Column writer using wordpress starts to ask the question of, "Penang belongs To Lim Guan Eng, Penang is Lim Guan Eng?"

However, today Putrajaya, under the Ministry of Malaysia, BN, are full with foreign tourists from Whites to Asians, why??

Today, the members of the Supreme Council DAP in Selangor and Penang is repeating the same old mistake of BN under premiership of Tun Dr Mahathir and Tun Pak Lah, DAP will become Lone Ranger in the land of monsters by declaring Independence or Merdeka from Pusat Kerajaan in the time of global volatility and limited resources of capital, natural, land and human capital....which serve as good news to BN especially UMNO.....to re-gain the PKR constituent in Selangor.....and DAP Penang will be re-gained by BN in PRU14....as historical happenings and data serve as best learning strategies in long term strategy....

Take care Ayahanda Tun. That's all for this weekend!

Salam Tun,

Once again you've hit the nail right on the head. Only the profoundly stupid or the incredibly gullible would believe that Muslims hate Americans for what they are rather than what they, or specifically their politicians, do.

It is American foreign policy that is driving Muslim animosity towards the US. The interventionist policies including the so-called pre-emptive wars that the US is waging towards other countries -- Muslim, as it turns out -- are what's driving the anger towards Americans. As a matter of fact, a Gallup poll conducted in several Muslims countries found that the majority of Muslims polled admired America, especially its democracy and technology. It's American foreign policy they hate.

It is very unlikely that a Muslim who's seen his daughter's wedding party blown to pieces by a US bomb would hate Americans for their "freedom." [I put the word freedom in inverted commas because Americans are not free from the influence of a Middle Eastern state which has bought off [link to PDF file, WRMEA site] most of their legislators. And most of the conflicts involving Muslim countries stem from the founding of this state which is Israel]. No, the Muslim would hate Americans for killing members of his family for no good reason.

Para 16 is so very true, Tun. As long as Americans do not know, or are kept from knowing, the reasons for Muslims' animosity towards them, the bloodshed will never cease.

I read a book written by a Scotsman who walked, walked, across Afghanistan during Bush's pre-emptive war on that country. Rory Stewart had no problems with local Muslim Afghans, including Taliban, although he was a Brit, had served in the British Army, and of course enjoyed "freedom." Stewart was treated hospitably in the midst of conflict although his country had many things in common with the Americans and had in fact participated in the invasion of Afghanistan a few months earlier.

And this British doctor spent some time in Afghanistan with his wife and four small children. Were Dr Andrew Duncan and his family molested by George Bush's worst nightmare -- fanatical, bearded, wild-eyed, misogynistic Muslims who hated everything about the West? No, they were not. They were welcomed; so welcomed that they spent six years in Afghanistan -- and of course, the Duncans also came from a country that had "freedom."

Ayahanda Tun,

It looks like "PM NAJIB KNOWS WHY THEY HATE US".....and his concept of 1Malaysia is getting good response and PM Najib is planning second 1Malaysia gathering.....PM Najib must stay focus in economic prosperity and development, and the issues of "I DON'T KNOW WHY THEY HATE US".....it would be better of for Malaysians of multiethnic political parties and people to decide what they want.....

Najib plans second 1Malaysia gathering

1. PETALING JAYA: Datuk Seri Najib Tun Razak is planning another 1Malaysia gathering for his online friends.
2. "After a day of social events and ceremonies around Baram, Bekenu and Miri, including my visit to several indigenous communities, my thoughts gravitated towards the next 1Malaysia gathering with my online friends," the Prime Minister wrote in his 1Malaysia blog.
3. Najib was in Sarawak on Thursday.
4. He said he found the first dialogue session in March valuable and insightful and hoped that more people would register for the event.
5. Najib said to ensure the next gathering would be more meaningful, there would be improvements made to enhance their experience and appreciation of 1Malaysia.
6. "Those of you who attended the last event at my house in March this year were asked to give your feedback.
7. "Your response had been overwhelmingly positive, with almost all of you expressing interest in attending or helping out with future events.
8. "I am especially pleased that all of you stated that you would recommend friends and family to register for the next event. I hope they do.
9. "I have yet to finalise the details, so your ideas for the gathering are most welcome."
10. The Prime Minister, who celebrated his 57th birthday yesterday, also thanked all well-wishers, including those online.//

Have a pleasant day, Ayahanda Tun. The comments made by Ir.Syahrizan has proven that he is not a malay traitor, but maverick man who will do anything to make him live luxury at the expense of down-grading own race and he will have his days count wen the time is right - "Luckily with moderate gaji, I manage to own and drive Proton since the day I could afford to buy a vehicles to "beli sayur" & "pasar minggu, kerja, jumpa klien, jumpa boss, hantar anak ke sekolah dan tuition, attend press conferences, balik kampung halaman ku....and a friend of mine with gaji of RM16,000 plus owed Proton Perdana until today....

P.S. The other comment on him which I wrote, Dok Tet has the upmost privilege to censor it as P & C so that Ir.Syahrizan will never find out wat are 1Malaysians' future plans after being 'scapegoat' by 'Melayu Mudah Lupa' similar to wat Anwar Ibrahim did to the Bakun Dam's Board of Director wen he was the Deputy PM cum FM under DrM in 1997!!

Good morning Ayahanda Tun,

Thestar online reported the status of Bakun Hidro Energy.....

1. Friday July 23, 2010
Sarawak Energy looking to buy or lease Bakun dam
By YAP LENG KUEN
lengkuen@thestar.com.my

1. PETALING JAYA: Sarawak Energy Bhd (SEB) is looking at whether to buy or lease the 2,400MW Bakun Dam in its long-term bid to develop the hydropower and industrial sectors in the state.
2. It is understood that SEB hopes to reach an agreement with Sarawak Hidro Sdn Bhd, the owner of the dam, and the Finance Ministry, which in turn owns Sarawak Hidro, in one or two months' time on the preferred option.
3. In the long term, leasing could turn out to be more expensive while a purchase based on deferred payments could be more feasible.
4. The issue here is that the Federal Government is said to be hesitant to sell power at too low a price while SEB may be unable to pay the "equitable" price, bearing in mind that it has not got the critical mass of investors that will take up the power.
5. Caught in this "chicken and egg" situation, it could be more feasible to instead buy up the dam with an upfront payment and subsequent staggered amounts subject to the usage of power.
6. "The purchase price is being discussed," said an industry source. "But in view of the fact that the Bakun Dam took so long to build, there are certain costs that SEB will likely not want to pay."
7. The tariff talks, which are about to commence following the endorsement of technical details on the term sheet, will likely determine the yearly payments that SEB would have to make under the purchase scenario.
8. However, it is not known if the Federal Government would accept the deferred payment proposal or if it had in mind some other mode of payment or trade-off.
9. Among Sarawak Hidro's main concerns is that the Government must be able to service its loans for the Bakun Dam, which come up to over RM3bil before adding interest and some operational costs.
10. According to Sarawak Hidro managing director Zulkifle Osman, the final cost of development is estimated at RM7bil. Out of the capacity of 2,400MW, the Bakun project is capable of producing anytime firm energy of 73% representing 1,770MW.

Gestation period

1. The problem is that even if SEB can procure the commitment from investors to set up their industries, the gestation period for many of these plants can be quite long.
2. Both parties would also be looking at a certain margin that includes transmission costs for SEB and a rate of return for the Federal Government.
3. The smelters and industries, especially in the Sarawak Corridor of Renewable Energy, are also reported to be putting pressure on SEB to come up with "cheap" power although SEB is trying to convince them that it is the total package that counts, not just the price of the power.
4. With dam impoundment or flooding to commence soon, there is an urgency to solve these issues, especially relating to investors, before the first turbine starts generating in the first half of next year.

5. According to Zulkifle, Sarawak Hidro is getting co-operation from the relevant agencies to submit undertaking documents for the window to impound at appropriate levels.

6. Civil works on the dam are near completion, with the electrical and electromechanical job in progress for the switchyard and turbine generator.

7. Dry testing on the turbine generator is being carried out, while details involving firm and installed capacity, switchyard and protection are being finalised.

MStar online reported status on using coal energy in Sabah as short term measure from BERNAMA...

Kerajaan Ambil Kira Pandangan Umum Cadangan Loji Janakuasa Arang Batu Lahad Datu

1. KOTA KINABALU: Kerajaan mengambil kira pandangan dan kebimbangan penduduk termasuk badan bukan kerajaan (NGO) berhubung cadangan pembinaan loji janakuasa arang batu di Lahad Datu.

2. Pembinaan loji itu bertujuan untuk mengatasi masalah bekalan elektrik di Sabah.

3. "Kita akan ambil kira pandangan mereka tetapi apa juga yang kita lakukan, ia akan berdasarkan laporan penilaian kesan alam sekitar (EIA), dan kita akan pastikan kita mematuhi laporan EIA," kata Perdana Menteri Datuk Seri Najib Tun Razak kepada pemberita selepas menghadiri jamuan tengah hari dengan pemimpin masyarakat Cina Sabah, di sini pada Ahad.

4. Beliau berkata pada ketika ini, keutamaan kerajaan ialah membekalkan tenaga di Sabah kerana kejadian gangguan bekalan elektrik masih kerap berlaku.

5. "Bagi Sabah untuk menjadi negeri maju, Sabah perlu mempunyai bekalan elektrik berterusan tanpa gangguan pada harga yang berpatutan. Pasti ada alternatif lain tetapi kos bagi alternatif itu lebih tinggi berbanding sistem konvensional.

6. "Rakyat Sabah tidak bersedia untuk membayar pada kadar lebih tinggi..., bagaimana kita nak bangunkan tenaga alternatif? Dan, untuk jangka masa pendek, tidak terdapat banyak alternatif," katanya.

7. Najib berkata demikian semasa ditanya mengenai pembangunan teknologi hijau di negara ini, termasuk cadangan pembinaan loji janakuasa arang batu di Lahad Datu di pantai timur Sabah.

8. Ketua Menteri Sabah Datuk Seri Musa Aman baru-baru ini berkata laporan EIA mengenai cadangan pembinaan loji janakuasa arang batu kontroversi itu dijangka dikeluarkan tidak lama lagi.

9. Pada September tahun lepas, Najib mengumumkan Felda Sahabat di Lahad Datu dicadangkan sebagai tapak bagi pembinaan loji janakuasa arang batu itu dengan kapasiti 300-megawatt.

10. Kini, kapasiti bekalan elektrik di pantai timur Sabah ialah 200 megawatt daripada loji janakuasa diesel.

11. Kumpulan aktivis alam sekitar seperti Green Surf membantah pembinaan loji janakuasa arang batu itu, yang mereka anggap sebagai tenaga "kotor" dan menggesa kerajaan membatalkan cadangan itu.

12. Dalam perkembangan lain, Najib berkata kerajaan kini dalam proses mengkaji kemungkinan memberikan insentif kepada sektor swasta, untuk tujuan meningkatkan pelaburan serta meningkatkan lagi kerjasama dengan swasta.

13. "Semua cadangan berkaitan dengan pemberian insentif kepada sektor swasta akan dipertimbangkan dan jika sesuai, kerajaan mungkin memasukkannya dalam bajet 2011," katanya.

14. Ketika ditanya mengenai pemberian kontrak kerajaan di Unversiti Malaysia Sabah, yang mengakibatkan beberapa kontraktor tempatan membuat laporan polis baru-baru ini, Najib menggesa Suruhanjaya Pencegahan Rasuah Malaysia menyasat perkara itu. - BERNAMA Malaysians hate our democracy, they hate our freedom?

Americans hate our jihad, they hate our freedom?

If multi-ethnic harmony is not maintain, then Malaysia Governemt will be bankrupted in 2019 by political parties, that is 50 years from today.

I strongly believe that there will be no May 13 riot because 1Malaysians are more educated, disipline, civilised, exposed to global factors due to internet guarantee and developed.....

However, wealth disribution gap will be larger due to democracy or jihad, freedom and human intelligence.....

Good day Ayahanda Tun. The sandirawara of the spat of political parties' power struggling, we just treat them as budaya politik sampah sarap of the such moronic mentality of :

1. Muslims hate Christians
2. Buddhists hate Hindus
3. Christians hate Muslims
4. But when there are public complaints, the government authority department will take actions without fear and bias.
5. It would be better off for these politicians to 'gaduh' for disagreement, and this pergaduhan will bring Malaysia nearer to 2020.
6. There is no majority under PAKSI 1MALAYSIA.....
7. DAP/PKR/PAS cannot solve this global tsunami 308 because they were voted by rakyat who wanted to teach arrogant and ignorant BN the lesson in the Peninsular.
8. Anwar Ibrahim and Zaid Ibrahim cannot be the future PM because they are not trustworthy and know nothing about the woes and difficulties face by the Government and investors.
9. Private sector will be the main engine to pull and push Malaysia to Wawasan 2020 regardless of races and religions.
10. Only those who are smart, hard-working, sincere, accountable, trustworthy and passionate will succeed in 1Malaysia.....for the next 50 to 100 years!

there is one more reason to this this hatred, and that is the sheer arrogance displayed by many americans in general almost without exception. and ignorance adds to salt to the injury. where this arrogance emerges from i know not, but we all know the world share a dislike for arrogance.

it is evident america is headed for a very rough ride indeed, given its enormous consumption of energy and resources, and the depleting and ever rising prices of natural resources.

but is this enough excuse to go to war, i am not sure. if all super powers of the world exhibit this mentality, it will not be safe to go outside anymore. it seems however, that many americans finds war a very attractive option, and the human sector who call themselves muslims provided a very convenient excuse indeed, and at the right time too.

what it all sums up to actually is a lot of americans thinking they need to go to war to keep their jobs and their wealth. it would take very long time to repair the damage done to american image in the eyes of the world, the damage brought upon by the american administration themselves. but i believe americans will be better educated and make a welcoming come back with plenty of goodwill to mankind in future.

voices of rational people like Sen Ron Paul is drowned by the current war dance rituals, depicted again and again in the mainstream media. so his ideas are of course, not popular. observer the reactions to Sen Ron Paul's arguments here (http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=G7d\_e9lrcZ8) but then, if obama can make a 180 degrees turn after winning, i am not sure sure if this man is will not do the same. sorry, i just have no confidence in word plays anymore. there is no more intergrity in many leaders today, cakap tak serapa bikin.

The Politics of Rage: WHY DO THEY HATE US?

To dismiss the terrorists as insane is to delude ourselves. Bin Laden and his fellow fanatics are products of failed societies that breed their anger. America needs a plan that will not only defeat terror but reform the Arab world

By Fareed Zakaria

To the question "Why do the terrorists hate us?" Americans could be pardoned for answering, "Why should we care?" The immediate reaction to the murder of 5,000 innocents is anger, not analysis. Yet anger will not be enough to get us through what is sure to be a long struggle. For that we will need answers. The ones we have heard so far have been comforting but familiar. We stand for freedom and they hate it. We are rich and they envy us. We are strong and they resent this. All of which is true. But there are billions of poor and weak and oppressed people around the world. They don't turn planes into bombs. They don't blow themselves up to kill thousands of civilians. If envy were the cause of terrorism, Beverly Hills, Fifth Avenue and Mayfair would have become morgues long ago. There is something stronger at work here than deprivation and jealousy. Something that can move men to kill but also to die. Osama bin Laden has an answer--religion. For him and his followers, this is a holy war between Islam and the Western world. Most Muslims disagree. Every Islamic country in the world has condemned the attacks of Sept. 11. To many, bin Laden belongs to a long line of extremists who have invoked religion to justify mass murder and spur men to suicide. The words "thug," "zealot" and "assassin" all come from ancient terror cults--Hindu, Jewish and Muslim, respectively--that believed they were doing the work of God. The terrorist's mind is its own place, and like Milton's Satan, can make a hell of heaven, a heaven of hell. Whether it is the Unabomber, Aum Shinrikyo or Baruch Goldstein (who killed scores of unarmed Muslims in Hebron), terrorists are almost always misfits who place their own twisted morality above mankind's.

But bin Laden and his followers are not an isolated cult like Aum Shinrikyo or the Branch Davidians or demented loners like Timothy McVeigh and the Unabomber. They come out of a culture that reinforces their hostility, distrust and hatred of the West--and of America in particular. This culture does not condone terrorism but fuels the fanaticism that is at its heart. To say that Al Qaeda is a fringe group may be reassuring, but it is false. Read the Arab press in the aftermath of the attacks and you will detect a not-so-hidden admiration for bin Laden. Or consider this from the Pakistani newspaper The Nation:

"September 11 was not mindless terrorism for terrorism's sake. It was reaction and revenge, even retribution." Why else is America's response to the terror attacks so deeply constrained by fears of an "Islamic backlash" on the streets? Pakistan will dare not allow Washington the use of its bases. Saudi Arabia trembles at the thought of having to help us publicly. Egypt pleads that our strikes be as limited as possible. The problem is not that Osama bin Laden believes that this is a religious war against America. It's that millions of people across the Islamic world seem to agree.

This awkward reality has led some in the West to dust off old essays and older prejudices redicting a "clash of civilizations" between the West and Islam. The historian Paul Johnson has argued that Islam is intrinsically an intolerant and violent religion. Other scholars have disagreed, pointing out that Islam condemns the slaughter of innocents and prohibits suicide. Nothing will be solved by searching for "true Islam" or quoting the Quran. The Quran is a vast, vague book, filled with poetry and contradictions (much like the Bible).

You can find in it condemnations of war and incitements to struggle, beautiful expressions of tolerance and stern strictures against unbelievers. Quotations from it usually tell us more about the person who selected the passages than about Islam. Every religion is compatible with the best and the worst of humankind. Through its long history, Christianity has supported inquisitions and anti-Semitism, but also human rights and social welfare.

Searching the history books is also of limited value. From the Crusades of the 11th century to the Turkish expansion of the 15th century to the colonial era in the early 20th century, Islam and the West have often battled militarily. This tension has existed for hundreds of years, during which there have been many periods of peace and even harmony. Until the 1950s, for example, Jews and Christians lived peaceably under Muslim rule. In fact, Bernard Lewis, the pre-eminent historian of Islam, has argued that for much of history religious minorities did better under Muslim rulers than they did under Christian ones.

All that has changed in the past few decades. So surely the relevant question we must ask is, Why are we in a particularly difficult phase right now? What has gone wrong in the world of Islam that explains not the conquest of Constantinople in 1453 or the siege of Vienna of 1683 but Sept. 11, 2001?

Let us first peer inside that vast Islamic world. Many of the largest Muslim countries in the world show little of this anti-American rage. The biggest, Indonesia, had, until the recent Asian economic crisis, been diligently following Washington's advice on economics, with impressive results. The second and third most populous Muslim countries, Pakistan and Bangladesh, have mixed Islam and modernity with some success. While both countries are impoverished, both have voted a woman into power as prime minister, before most Western countries have done so. Next is Turkey, the sixth largest Muslim country in the world, a flawed but functioning secular democracy and a close ally of the West (being a member of NATO).

Only when you get to the Middle East do you see in lurid colors all the dysfunctions that people conjure up when they think of Islam today. In Iran, Egypt, Syria, Iraq, Jordan, the occupied territories and the Persian Gulf, the resurgence of Islamic fundamentalism is virulent, and a raw anti-Americanism seems to be everywhere. This is the land of suicide bombers, flag-burners and fiery mullahs. As we strike Afghanistan it is worth remembering that not a single Afghan has been tied to a terrorist attack against the United States.

Afghanistan is the campground from which an Arab army is battling America. But even the Arab rage at America is relatively recent. In the 1950s and 1960s it seemed unimaginable that the United States and the Arab world would end up locked in a cultural clash. Egypt's most powerful journalist, Mohamed Heikal, described the mood at the time: "The whole picture of the United States... was a glamorous one. Britain and France were fading, hated empires. The Soviet Union was 5,000 miles away and the ideology of communism was anathema to the Muslim religion. But America had emerged from World War II richer, more powerful and more appealing than ever." I first traveled to the Middle East in the early 1970s, and even then the image of America was of a glistening, approachable modernity: fast cars, Hilton hotels and Coca-Cola. Something happened in these lands. To understand the roots of anti-American rage in the Middle East, we need to plumb not the past 300 years of history but the past 30.

Chapter I: The Ruler

It is difficult to conjure up the excitement in the Arab world in the late 1950s as Gamal Abdel Nasser consolidated power in Egypt. For decades Arabs had been ruled by colonial governors and decadent kings. Now they were achieving their dreams of independence, and Nasser was their new savior, a modern man for the postwar era. He was born under British rule, in Alexandria, a cosmopolitan city that was more Mediterranean than Arab. His formative years were spent in the Army, the most Westernized segment of the society. With his tailored suits and fashionable dark glasses, he cut an energetic figure on the world stage. "The Lion of Egypt," he spoke for all the Arab world.

Nasser believed that Arab politics needed to be fired by modern ideas like self-determination, socialism and Arab unity. And before oil money turned the gulf states into golden geese, Egypt was the undisputed leader of the Middle East. So Nasser's vision became the region's. Every regime, from the Baathists in Syria and Iraq to the conservative monarchies of the gulf, spoke in similar terms and tones. It wasn't that they were just aping Nasser. The Middle East desperately wanted to become modern.

It failed. For all their energy these regimes chose bad ideas and implemented them in worse ways. Socialism produced bureaucracy and stagnation. Rather than adjusting to the failures of central planning, the economies never really moved on. The republics calcified into dictatorships. Third World "nonalignment" became pro-Soviet propaganda. Arab unity cracked and crumbled as countries discovered their own national interests and opportunities. Worst of all, Israel humiliated the Arabs in the wars of 1967 and 1973. When Saddam Hussein invaded Kuwait in 1990, he destroyed the last remnants of the Arab idea.

Look at Egypt today. The promise of Nasserism has turned into a quiet nightmare. The government is efficient in only one area: squashing dissent and strangling civil society. In the past 30 years Egypt's economy has sputtered along while its population has doubled. Unemployment is at 25 percent, and 90 percent of those searching for jobs hold college diplomas. Once the heart of Arab intellectual life, the country produces just 375 books every year (compared with Israel's 4,000). For all the angry protests to foreigners, Egyptians know all this.

Shockingly, Egypt has fared better than its Arab neighbors. Syria has become one of the world's most oppressive police states, a country where 25,000 people can be rounded up and killed by the regime with no consequences. (This in a land whose capital, Damascus, is the oldest continuously inhabited city in the world.) In 30 years Iraq has gone from being among the most modern and secular of Arab countries--with women working, artists thriving, journalists writing--into a squalid playpen for Saddam Hussein's megalomania. Lebanon, a diverse, cosmopolitan society with a capital, Beirut, that was once called the Paris of the East, has become a hellhole of war and terror. In an almost unthinkable reversal of a global pattern, almost every Arab country today is less free than it was 30 years ago. There are few countries in the world of which one can say that.

We think of Africa's dictators as rapacious, but those in the Middle East can be just as greedy. And when contrasted with the success of Israel, Arab failures are even more humiliating. For all its flaws, out of the same desert Israel has created a functioning democracy, a modern society with an increasingly high-technology economy and thriving artistic and cultural life. Israel now has a per capita GDP that equals that of many Western countries.

If poverty produced failure in most of Arabia, wealth produced failure in the rest of it. The rise of oil power in the 1970s gave a second wind to Arab hopes. Where Nasserism failed, petroleum would succeed. But it didn't. All that the rise of oil prices has done over three decades is to produce a new class of rich, superficially Western gulf Arabs, who travel the globe in luxury and are despised by the rest of the Arab world. Look at any cartoons of gulf sheiks in Egyptian, Jordanian or Syrian newspapers. They are portrayed in the most insulting, almost racist manner: as corpulent, corrupt and weak. Most Americans think that Arabs should be grateful for our role in the gulf war, for we saved Kuwait and Saudi Arabia. Most Arabs think that we saved the Kuwaiti and Saudi royal families. Big difference.

The money that the gulf sheiks have frittered away is on a scale that is almost impossible to believe. Just one example: a favored prince of Saudi Arabia, at the age of 25, built a palace in Riyadh for $300 million and, as an additional bounty, was given a $1 billion commission on the kingdom's telephone contract with AT&T. Far from producing political progress, wealth has actually had some negative effects. It has enriched and empowered the gulf governments so that, like their Arab brethren, they, too, have become more repressive over time. The Bedouin societies they once ruled have become gilded cages, filled with frustrated, bitter and discontented young men--some of whom now live in Afghanistan and work with Osama bin Laden. (Bin Laden and some of his aides come from privileged backgrounds in Saudi Arabia.) By the late 1980s, while the rest of the world was watching old regimes from Moscow to Prague to Seoul to Johannesburg crack, the Arabs were stuck with their aging dictators and corrupt kings. Regimes that might have seemed promising in the 1960s were now exposed as tired, corrupt kleptocracies, deeply unpopular and thoroughly illegitimate. One has to add that many of them are close American allies.

Chapter II: Failed Ideas

About a decade ago, in a casual conversation with an elderly Arab intellectual, I expressed my frustration that governments in the Middle East had been unable to liberalize their economies and societies in the way that the East Asians had done. "Look at Singapore, Hong Kong and Seoul," I said, pointing to their extraordinary economic achievements. The man, a gentle, charming scholar, straightened up and replied sharply, "Look at them. They have simply aped the West. Their cities are cheap copies of Houston and Dallas. That may be all right for fishing villages. But we are heirs to one of the great civilizations of the world. We cannot become slums of the West."

This disillusionment with the West is at the heart of the Arab problem. It makes economic advance impossible and political progress fraught with difficulty. Modernization is now taken to mean, inevitably, uncontrollably, Westernization and, even worse, Americanization. This fear has paralyzed Arab civilization. In some ways the Arab world seems less ready to confront the age of globalization than even Africa, despite the devastation that continent has suffered from AIDS and economic and political dysfunction. At least the Africans want to adapt to the new global economy. The Arab world has not yet taken that first step.

The question is how a region that once yearned for modernity could reject it so dramatically. In the Middle Ages the Arabs studied Aristotle (when he was long forgotten in the West) and invented algebra. In the 19th century, when the West set ashore in Arab lands, in the form of Napoleon's conquest of Egypt, the locals were fascinated by this powerful civilization. In fact, as the historian Albert Hourani has documented, the 19th century saw European-inspired liberal political and social thought flourish in the Middle East.

The colonial era of the late 19th and early 20th centuries raised hopes of British friendship that were to be disappointed, but still Arab elites remained fascinated with the West. Future kings and generals attended Victoria College in Alexandria, learning the speech and manners of British gentlemen. Many then went on to Oxford, Cambridge and Sandhurst--a tradition that is still maintained by Jordan's royal family, though now they go to Hotchkiss or Lawrenceville. After World War I, a new liberal age flickered briefly in the Arab world, as ideas about opening up politics and society gained currency in places like Egypt, Lebanon, Iraq and Syria. But since they were part of a world of kings and aristocrats, these ideas died with those old regimes. The new ones, however, turned out to be just as Western.

Nasser thought his ideas for Egypt and the Arab world were modern. They were also Western. His "national charter" of 1962 reads as if it were written by left-wing intellectuals in Paris or London. (Like many Third World leaders of the time, Nasser was a devoted reader of France's Le Monde and Britain's New Statesman.) Even his most passionately held project, Pan-Arabism, was European.

It was a version of the nationalism that had united Italy and Germany in the 1870s--that those who spoke one language should be one nation. America thinks of modernity as all good--and it has been almost all good for America. But for the Arab world, modernity has been one failure after another. Each path followed--socialism, secularism, nationalism--has turned into a dead end. While other countries adjusted to their failures, Arab regimes got stuck in their ways. And those that reformed economically could not bring themselves to ease up politically. The Shah of Iran, the Middle Eastern ruler who tried to move his country into the modern era fastest, reaped the most violent reaction in the Iranian revolution of 1979. But even the shah's modernization--compared, for example, with the East Asian approach of hard work, investment and thrift--was an attempt to buy modernization with oil wealth.

It turns out that modernization takes more than strongmen and oil money. Importing foreign stuff--Cadillacs, Gulfstreams and McDonald's--is easy. Importing the inner stuffings of modern society--a free market, political parties, accountability and the rule of law--is difficult and dangerous. The gulf states, for example, have gotten modernization lite, with the goods and even the workers imported from abroad. Nothing was homegrown; nothing is even now. As for politics, the gulf governments offered their people a bargain: we will bribe you with wealth, but in return let us stay in power. It was the inverse slogan of the American revolution--no taxation, but no representation either.

The new age of globalization has hit the Arab world in a very strange way. Its societies are open enough to be disrupted by modernity, but not so open that they can ride the wave. They see the television shows, the fast foods and the fizzy drinks. But they don't see genuine liberalization in the society, with increased opportunities and greater openness. Globalization in the Arab world is the critic's caricature of globalization--a slew of Western products and billboards with little else. For some in their societies it means more things to buy. For the regimes it is an unsettling, dangerous phenomenon. As a result, the people they rule can look at globalization but for the most part not touch it.

America stands at the center of this world of globalization. It seems unstoppable. If you close the borders, America comes in through the mail. If you censor the mail, it appears in the fast food and faded jeans. If you ban the products, it seeps in through satellite television. Americans are so comfortable with global capitalism and consumer culture that we cannot fathom just how revolutionary these forces are.

Disoriented young men, with one foot in the old world and another in the new, now look for a purer, simpler alternative. Fundamentalism searches for such people everywhere; it, too, has been globalized. One can now find men in Indonesia who regard the Palestinian cause as their own. (Twenty years ago an Indonesian Muslim would barely have known where Palestine was.) Often they learned about this path away from the West while they were in the West. As did Mohamed Atta, the Hamburg-educated engineer who drove the first plane into the World Trade Center.

The Arab world has a problem with its Attas in more than one sense. Globalization has caught it at a bad demographic moment. Arab societies are going through a massive youth bulge, with more than half of most countries' populations under the age of 25. Young men, often better educated than their parents, leave their traditional villages to find work. They arrive in noisy, crowded cities like Cairo, Beirut and Damascus or go to work in the oil states. (Almost 10 percent of Egypt's working population worked in the gulf at one point.) In their new world they see great disparities of wealth and the disorienting effects of modernity; most unsettlingly, they see women, unveiled and in public places, taking buses, eating in cafes and working alongside them.

A huge influx of restless young men in any country is bad news. When accompanied by even small economic and social change, it usually produces a new politics of protest. In the past, societies in these circumstances have fallen prey to a search for revolutionary solutions. (France went through a youth bulge just before the French Revolution, as did Iran before its 1979 revolution.) In the case of the Arab world, this revolution has taken the form of an Islamic resurgence.

Chapter III: Enter Religion

Nasser was a reasonably devout Muslim, but he had no interest in mixing religion with politics. It struck him as moving backward. This became apparent to the small Islamic parties that supported Nasser's rise to power. The most important one, the Muslim Brotherhood, began opposing him vigorously, often violently.

Nasser cracked down on it in 1954, imprisoning more than a thousand of its leaders and executing six. One of those jailed, Sayyid Qutub, a frail man with a fiery pen, wrote a book in prison called "Signposts on the Road," which in some ways marks the beginnings of modern political Islam or what is often called "Islamic fundamentalism."

In his book, Qutub condemned Nasser as an impious Muslim and his regime as un-Islamic. Indeed, he went on, almost every modern Arab regime was similarly flawed. Qutub envisioned a better, more virtuous polity that was based on strict Islamic principles, a core goal of orthodox Muslims since the 1880s. As the regimes of the Middle East grew more distant and oppressive and hollow in the decades following Nasser, fundamentalism's appeal grew. It flourished because the Muslim Brotherhood and organizations like it at least tried to give people a sense of meaning and purpose in a changing world, something no leader in the Middle East tried to do.

In his seminal work, "The Arab Predicament," Fouad Ajami explains, "The fundamentalist call has resonance because it invited men to participate... [in] contrast to a political culture that reduces citizens to spectators and asks them to leave things to their rulers. At a time when the future is uncertain, it connects them to a tradition that reduces bewilderment." Fundamentalism gave Arabs who were dissatisfied with their lot a powerful language of opposition.

On that score, Islam had little competition. The Arab world is a political desert with no real political parties, no free press, few pathways for dissent. As a result, the mosque turned into the place to discuss politics. And fundamentalist organizations have done more than talk. From the Muslim Brotherhood to Hamas to Hizbullah, they actively provide social services, medical assistance, counseling and temporary housing. For those who treasure civil society, it is disturbing to see that in the Middle East these illiberal groups are civil society.

I asked Sheri Berman, a scholar at Princeton who studies the rise of fascist parties in Europe, whether she saw any parallels. "Fascists were often very effective at providing social services," she pointed out. "When the state or political parties fail to provide a sense of legitimacy or purpose or basic services, other organizations have often been able to step into the void. In Islamic countries there is a ready-made source of legitimacy in the religion. So it's not surprising that this is the foundation on which these groups have flourished. The particular form--Islamic fundamentalism--is specific to this region, but the basic dynamic is similar to the rise of Nazism, fascism and even populism in the United States."

Islamic fundamentalism got a tremendous boost in 1979 when Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini toppled the Shah of Iran. The Iranian revolution demonstrated that a powerful ruler could be taken on by groups within society. It also revealed how in a broken society even seemingly benign forces of progress--education and technology--can add to the turmoil. Until the 1970s most Muslims in the Middle East were illiterate and lived in villages and towns. They practiced a kind of street-Islam that had adapted itself to the local culture. Pluralistic and tolerant, these people often worshiped saints, went to shrines, sang religious hymns and cherished religious art, all technically disallowed in Islam. (This was particularly true in Iran.) By the 1970s, however, people had begun moving out of the villages and their religious experience was not rooted in a specific place. At the same time they were learning to read and they discovered that a new Islam was being preached by the fundamentalists, an abstract faith not rooted in historical experience but literal, puritanical and by the book. It was Islam of the High Church as opposed to Islam of the village fair.

In Iran, Ayatollah Khomeini used a powerful technology--the audiocassette. His sermons were distributed throughout the country and became the vehicle of opposition to the shah's repressive regime. But Khomeini was not alone in using the language of Islam as a political tool. Intellectuals, disillusioned by the half-baked or overrapid modernization that was throwing their world into turmoil, were writing books against "Westoxification" and calling the modern Iranian man--half Western, half Eastern--rootless. Fashionable intellectuals, often writing from the comfort of London or Paris, would critique American secularism and consumerism and endorse an Islamic alternative. As theories like these spread across the Arab world, they appealed not to the poorest of the poor, for whom Westernization was magical (it meant food and medicine). They appealed to the half-educated hordes entering the cities of the Middle East or seeking education and jobs in the West.

The fact that Islam is a highly egalitarian religion for the most part has also proved an empowering call for people who felt powerless. At the same time it means that no Muslim really has the authority to question whether someone who claims to be a proper Muslim is one. The fundamentalists, from Sayyid Qutub on, have jumped into that the void. They ask whether people are "good Muslims." It is a question that has terrified the Muslim world. And here we come to the failure not simply of governments but intellectual and social elites. Moderate Muslims are loath to criticize or debunk the fanaticism of the fundamentalists. Like the moderates in Northern Ireland, they are scared of what would happen to them if they speak their mind.

The biggest Devil's bargain has been made by the moderate monarchies of the Persian Gulf, particularly Saudi Arabia. The Saudi regime has played a dangerous game. It deflects attention from its shoddy record at home by funding religious schools (madrasas) and centers that spread a rigid, puritanical brand of Islam--Wahhabism. In the past 30 years Saudi-funded schools have churned out tens of thousands of half-educated, fanatical Muslims who view the modern world and non-Muslims with great suspicion. America in this world view is almost always evil.

This exported fundamentalism has in turn infected not just other Arab societies but countries outside the Arab world, like Pakistan. During the 11-year reign of Gen. Zia ul-Haq, the dictator decided that as he squashed political dissent he needed allies. He found them in the fundamentalists. With the aid of Saudi financiers and functionaries, he set up scores of madrasas throughout the country. They bought him temporary legitimacy but have eroded the social fabric of Pakistan.

If there is one great cause of the rise of Islamic fundamentalism, it is the total failure of political institutions in the Arab world. Muslim elites have averted their eyes from this reality. Conferences at Islamic centers would still rather discuss "Islam and the Environment" than examine the dysfunctions of the current regimes. But as the moderate majority looks the other way, Islam is being taken over by a small poisonous element, people who advocate cruel attitudes toward women, education, the economy and modern life in general. I have seen this happen in India, where I grew up. The rich, colorful, pluralistic and easygoing Islam of my youth has turned into a dour, puritanical faith, policed by petty theocrats and religious commissars. The next section deals with what the United States can do to help the Islamic world. But if Muslims do not take it upon themselves to stop their religion from falling prey to medievalists, nothing any outsider can do will save them.

Chapter IV: WHAT TO DO

If almost any Arab were to have read this essay so far, he would have objected vigorously by now. "It is all very well to talk about the failures of the Arab world," he would say, "but what about the failures of the West? You speak of long-term decline, but our problems are with specific, cruel American policies." For most Arabs, relations with the United States have been filled with disappointment.

While the Arab world has long felt betrayed by Europe's colonial powers, its disillusionment with America begins most importantly with the creation of Israel in 1948. As the Arabs see it, at a time when colonies were winning independence from the West, here was a state largely composed of foreign people being imposed on a region with Western backing. The anger deepened in the wake of America's support for Israel during the wars of 1967 and 1973, and ever since in its relations with the Palestinians. The daily exposure to Israel's iron-fisted rule over the occupied territories has turned this into the great cause of the Arab--and indeed the broader Islamic--world. Elsewhere, they look at American policy in the region as cynically geared to America's oil interests, supporting thugs and tyrants without any hesitation. Finally, the bombing and isolation of Iraq have become fodder for daily attacks on the United States. While many in the Arab world do not like Saddam Hussein, they believe that the United States has chosen a particularly inhuman method of fighting him--a method that is starving an entire nation.

There is substance to some of these charges, and certainly from the point of view of an Arab, American actions are never going to seem entirely fair. Like any country, America has its interests. In my view, America's greatest sins toward the Arab world are sins of omission. We have neglected to press any regime there to open up its society. This neglect turned deadly in the case of Afghanistan. Walking away from that fractured country after 1989 resulted in the rise of bin Laden and the Taliban. This is not the gravest error a great power can make, but it is a common American one. As F. Scott Fitzgerald explained of his characters in "The Great Gatsby," "They were careless people, Tom and Daisy--they smashed things up and creatures and then retreated back into their money, or their vast carelessness... and let other people clean up the mess." America has not been venal in the Arab world. But it has been careless. Yet carelessness is not enough to explain Arab rage. After all, if concern for the Palestinians is at the heart of the problem, why have their Arab brethren done nothing for them? (They cannot resettle in any Arab nation but Jordan, and the aid they receive from the Gulf states is minuscule.) Israel treats its 1 million Arabs as second-class citizens, a disgrace on its democracy. And yet the tragedy of the Arab world is that Israel accords them more political rights and dignities than most Arab nations give to their own people. Why is the focus of Arab anger on Israel and not those regimes?

The disproportionate feelings of grievance directed at America have to be placed in the overall context of the sense of humiliation, decline and despair that sweeps the Arab world. After all, the Chinese vigorously disagree with most of America's foreign policy and have fought wars with U.S. proxies. African states feel the same sense of disappointment and unfairness. But they do not work it into a rage against America. Arabs, however, feel that they are under siege from the modern world and that the United States symbolizes this world. Thus every action America takes gets magnified a thousandfold. And even when we do not act, the rumors of our gigantic powers and nefarious deeds still spread. Most Americans would not believe how common the rumor is throughout the Arab world that either the CIA or Israel's Mossad blew up the World Trade Center to justify attacks on Arabs and Muslims. This is the culture from which the suicide bombers have come.

America must now devise a strategy to deal with this form of religious terrorism. As is now widely understood, this will be a long war, with many fronts and battles small and large. Our strategy must be divided along three lines: military, political and cultural. On the military front--by which I mean war, covert operations and other forms of coercion--the goal is simple: the total destruction of Al Qaeda. Even if we never understand all the causes of apocalyptic terror, we must do battle against it. Every person who plans and helps in a terrorist operation must understand that he will be tracked and punished. Their operations will be disrupted, their finances drained, their hideouts destroyed. There will be associated costs to pursuing such a strategy, but they will all fade if we succeed. Nothing else matters on the military front.

The political strategy is more complex and more ambitious. At the broadest level, we now have a chance to reorder the international system around this pressing new danger. The degree of cooperation from around the world has been unprecedented. We should not look on this trend suspiciously. Most governments feel threatened by the rise of subnational forces like Al Qaeda. Even some that have clearly supported terrorism in the past, like Iran, seem interested in re-entering the world community and reforming their ways.

We can define a strategy for the post-cold-war era that addresses America's principal national-security need and yet is sustained by a broad international consensus. To do this we will have to give up some cold-war reflexes, such as an allergy to multilateralism, and stop insisting that China is about to rival us militarily or that Russia is likely to re-emerge as a new military threat. (For 10 years now, our defense forces have been aligned for everything but the real danger we face. This will inevitably change.)

The purpose of an international coalition is practical and strategic. Given the nature of this war, we will need the constant cooperation of other governments--to make arrests, shut down safe houses, close bank accounts and share intelligence. Alliance politics has become a matter of high national security. But there is a broader imperative. The United States dominates the world in a way that inevitably arouses envy or anger or opposition. That comes with the power, but we still need to get things done. If we can mask our power in--sorry, work with--institutions like the United Nations Security Council, U.S. might will be easier for much of the world to bear. Bush's father understood this, which is why he ensured that the United Nations sanctioned the Gulf war. The point here is to succeed, and international legitimacy can help us do that.

Now we get to Israel. It is obviously one of the central and most charged problems in the region. But it is a problem to which we cannot offer the Arab world support for its solution--the extinction of the state. We cannot in any way weaken our commitment to the existence and health of Israel. Similarly, we cannot abandon our policy of containing Saddam Hussein. He is building weapons of mass destruction.

However, we should not pursue mistaken policies simply out of spite. Our policy toward Saddam is broken. We have no inspectors in Iraq, the sanctions are--for whatever reason--starving Iraqis and he continues to build chemical and biological weapons. There is a way to reorient our policy to focus our pressure on Saddam and not his people, contain him militarily but not harm common Iraqis economically. Colin Powell has been trying to do this; he should be given leeway to try again. In time we will have to address the broader question of what to do about Saddam, a question that, unfortunately, does not have an easy answer. (Occupying Iraq, even if we could do it, does not seem a good idea in this climate.) On Israel we should make a clear distinction between its right to exist and its occupation of the West Bank and Gaza. On the first we should be as unyielding as ever; on the second we should continue trying to construct a final deal along the lines that Bill Clinton and Ehud Barak outlined. I suggest that we do this less because it will lower the temperature in the Arab world--who knows if it will?--than because it's the right thing to do. Israel cannot remain a democracy and continue to occupy and militarily rule 3 million people against their wishes. It's bad for Israel, bad for the Palestinians and bad for the United States.

But policy changes, large or small, are not at the heart of the struggle we face. The third, vital component to this battle is a cultural strategy. The United States must help Islam enter the modern world. It sounds like an impossible challenge, and it certainly is not one we would have chosen. But America--indeed the whole world--faces a dire security threat that will not be resolved unless we can stop the political, economic and cultural collapse that lies at the roots of Arab rage. During the cold war the West employed myriad ideological strategies to discredit the appeal of communism, make democracy seem attractive and promote open societies. We will have to do something on that scale to win this cultural struggle.

First, we have to help moderate Arab states, but on the condition that they embrace moderation. For too long regimes like Saudi Arabia's have engaged in a deadly dance with religious extremism. Even Egypt, which has always denounced fundamentalism, allows its controlled media to rant crazily about America and Israel. (That way they don't rant about the dictatorship they live under.) But more broadly, we must persuade Arab moderates to make the case to their people that Islam is compatible with modern society, that it does allow women to work, that it encourages education and that it has welcomed people of other faiths and creeds. Some of this they will do--Sept. 11 has been a wake-up call for many. The Saudi regime denounced and broke its ties to the Taliban (a regime that it used to glorify as representing pure Islam). The Egyptian press is now making the case for military action. The United States and the West should do their own work as well. We can fund moderate Muslim groups and scholars and broadcast fresh thinking across the Arab world, all aimed at breaking the power of the fundamentalists. Obviously we will have to help construct a new political order in Afghanistan after we have deposed the Taliban regime. But beyond that we have to press the nations of the Arab world--and others, like Pakistan, where the virus of fundamentalism has spread--to reform, open up and gain legitimacy. We need to do business with these regimes; yet, just as we did with South Korea and Taiwan during the cold war, we can ally with these dictatorships and still push them toward reform. For those who argue that we should not engage in nation-building, I would say foreign policy is not theology. I have myself been skeptical of nation-building in places where our interests were unclear and it seemed unlikely that we would stay the course. In this case, stable political development is the key to reducing our single greatest security threat. We have no option but to get back into the nation-building business. It sounds like a daunting challenge, but there are many good signs. Al Qaeda is not more powerful than the combined force of many determined governments. The world is indeed uniting around American leadership, and perhaps we will see the emergence, for a while, of a new global community and consensus, which could bring progress in many other areas of international life. Perhaps most important, Islamic fundamentalism still does not speak to the majority of the Muslim people. In Pakistan, fundamentalist parties have yet to get more than 10 percent of the vote. In Iran, having experienced the brutal puritanism of the mullahs, people are yearning for normalcy. In Egypt, for all the repression, the fundamentalists are a potent force but so far not dominant. If the West can help Islam enter modernity in dignity and peace, it will have done more than achieved security. It will have changed the world.

Dr M.

Yes, there is a lot of truth in your saying that the Palestine and Israel issue is the main course of discontent for a lot of moslems towards America. The majority of Americans however do not think too much about the problems between Israel and Palestine. We are too busy living our daily lives over here and have our own problems to worry about. However, it is the government's policy to support Israel. Washington DC is a separate entity of its own and does not reflect on all Americans well intention. Israel has spent billions to ensure that there is a well oiled machine to continue lobbying the Congress for continued support for Israel. They do this through peaceful means and within the law to gain attention towards their plight. Also billions are also spent to ensure that pro Israel senators to win the elections. This is a brilliant tactic on their part.

The Palestinians do not have the same luxury and are not well heard of their problems besides the wrong support that they are receiving from Moslems dying violently in the jihad cause. This only cause the general perception of Americans towards Moslems to be more negative and that they are violent people. I personally do not see the problem ending and only see it getting worse with the polarizing of the West and the Moslem countries. Generations of Israelis and Palestinians grew up hating each other after so many years of killing and distrust. It is already happening now with American and the Moslem nations. I happened to hear my own kids and their friends talking about the crazy Moslems killing Americans while watching TV. When they grow up, they will be so anti Moslems just like the Moslems in the world hating Americans.

Peace unto all.

Dear Tun,

I Have tried on many an occasion to get you to enlighten your readers on one subject...

"The Yom Kippur War, or the Ramadhan War, or October War, 1972".

Elaborate on this and see if there was justice then. If you can See permission for the Arabs to do to the Jews back then as permissible, Then What is Happening now is, In Your Opinion, Justified.

I Won't Write Long because i find a lot of the Challenges i put to you gets Omitted by your blog team. No courage to answer them??? Afraid if the General Malaysian Population see how The Jews were treated by their neighbours, Would people have a different opinion?

Your Form of Self Censorship... Prevent embarrassment..

Good day to You Tun and God Bless...

Dearest Tun,

The world loves America so much.Their propaganda machine has been very effective.The Red Indians were the bad guys and the Cowboys were the good guys. The good guys needed to defend themselves from the constant ambush by these ruthless uncivilized savages.The story why the Injuns became aggressive was however not so revealed to the public.

Japan was the other evil nation that offended USA by attacking the Pearl Harbour,but what provoked the Japanese was also not told the world.So the killing of hundreds of thousands innocent civilian Japanese by USA atomic bombs in retaliation was justified as a collateral damage.

The Muslims do not hate the Americans .Actually Muslims are like the rest of the world too, they love America.If only you could see what the Muslim girls wear beneath their burqas and purdahs you could see that they have all been Americanized.Like the rest of the world, Muslims too have been brainwashed by Hollywood propaganda machine.

It's these injustices political America has inflicted on the Muslims by supporting Israel's aggression on Palestine since time immemorial,that make it easy for some truly frustrated Muslims to be easily instigated to do something foolish for themselves as well as for the other Muslims.

For as long as Osama ben Laden is still not captured that means the plan of destroying another Muslim nation is very much on their Agenda. Can anyone really believe that the great American intelligence and satellite technology really cannot detect this Osama Laden with his very big family living somewhere in the caves of the mountains of Afghanistan? They want the fight against terrorism to be relevant to justify their huge defense budget.

Tun the enemies are really that strong. There's nothing we could do should they want to shock and awe another Muslim nation with their great weapons. Killing ourselves through suicide bombing only make their job much easier. Whoever taught the Muslims this stupid strategy of winning the war against the enemies?

Its obvious the enemies are scheming big things against the Muslims and only God can save us Tun. But we must do the right things. Firstly we must not do any provocation and secondly, we must sue for peace no matter what. We must never fight fire with fire.

Thanks Tun.

A'kum Tun & Keluarga. Moga sihat selalu hendaknya.

Muslims hatred against American (government) are very much inevitable because what we Muslims know is that America is Israel twin brother for doing authentic evil holocaust against Muslims around the globe. This is a very real holocaust unlike the myth of Nazi holocaust against the Jews which was invented by the Jewish bankers (Rothschild & Co.) for the creation of the State of Israel.

This hatred is similar just like American peoples who hate Jewish peoples in America for their evil doings towards the gentiles American, and in fact this hatred towards Jews is growing as days go by.

>>3. Later on answering his own question, Bush declared that "they hate our democracy. They hate our freedom".

How could we Muslims hate American for their so-called freedom and democracy that they have when both are obsolete long ago in the land of US of A.

Just take a brief look at a few of American's legislations / Acts that reveals a 'freedom and democracy' that being 'enjoyed' by the Americans and 'hate' by the Muslims:

1) The Enemy Belligerent Interrogation Act: Empowers the US president and the military to determine if an individual poses a terrorist threat so that he can be arrested, detained, and interrogated indefinitely. Under this Bill, known as the "Patriot Act on Steroids," suspects would lose their Miranda rights and Sixth Amendment Right to an Attorney and fair trial.

2) Terrorist Expatriation Act: Strips terrorism suspects of their US citizenship, thereby making them immediately eligible for military tribunals apart from the right of due process, legal arrest, and conviction.

The bill applies to all Americans who support any organization that is deemed a supporter of terrorism by an ally of the US. The bill gives the State Department, (run by Jews), the power to determine who is a terrorist and strip away his citizenship.

3) Protect America Act: Empowers the Attorney General to collect private international communications made by phone calls and emails.

The bill, described as the "Police America Act," grants immunity to telephone companies and allows the Attorney General to issue warrants to record international calls without court review.

4) National Emergency Centers Establishment Act: Empowers Congress to build FEMA camps for "dislocated citizens."

5) Protecting Cyberspace as a National Asset Act: Empowers the President to lock down the Internet during a national emergency.

And of course more Acts to come for American people to 'enjoy'. The Jews are not done yet with you America and we Muslims too. Not until the ruling state in the world being shifted swiftly from Washington to Jerusalem. The transfer must be flawless just like when 'they' shift the ruling state in the world from London to Washington!

What kind of freedom and democracy in America that Bush was talking about? This Joker must be on drugs!

Wassalam.

Assalamualikum YAB Tun yang di kasihi semoga sehat sehat selalu insyallah,

WHO HATES WHO? That is the question the American must answer.

DEMOCRACY ? WHAT DEMOCRACY ACTUALLY MEANS? They must also answer that question. It is no use for the American to talk about their brand of Democracy and Human Rights, when they themselves do not practice what they preach.

The following are the American brand of DEMOCRACY

1. Illegal occupation of Palestinian land.
  2. Helping Israel in all their brutalities.
  3. Killing thousands of Palestinian children, old people, and civilian
  4. Total destruction of their homes, schools, hospitals, shops and their cities.
  - 5 Stopping food supplies, medicine, building materials, educational materials, medical equipment etc from reaching them
  6. Starving them to death slowly but surely.
- Unless the American change their brand of democracy the 'HATE' could go on till Doomsday Terima Kasih YAB Tun wasalamualikum.

Thanks for being frank and straightforward. Hope your writing reach many Americans. Americans in general are fair and gentlemen. But they are deprived from others point of view and limited in their understanding about rest of the world.

Assalamualaikum. Dear Tun.

George W. Bush???

1. White House claimed, Saddam Hussein was an immediate and serious threat to America ... Lied.

2. Bush mislead the public, the Congress and the United Nations(UN) by consistently overstating this threat ... US Lied.

3. The British Government has learned that Saddam Hussein recently sought significant quantities of uranium from Africa... Stupid US Lied.

4. 9/11 Commission released a report saying, among other things, that there was no "collaborative relationship" between Al Qaeda and Iraq... uS Lied More.

5. Bush insisted that Iraq possessed weapons of mass destruction. The United Nations(UN) was on the ground in Iraq and could find nothing... Idiot US Lied again.

6. Bush wanted so much to convince people of the need to invade Iraq that the White House set up a secret team in the Pentagon to create evidence... Again, US Lied.

7. Bush said, ""We know that the regime has produced thousands of tons of chemical agents, including mustard gas, sarin nerve gas, VX nerve gas." ... United Nations (UN) found NO PROVES... There, US Lied again and again...

SIMPLE: THEY ARE LIAR.

Salam buat Ayahanda Tun dan semua pembaca...

The Americans are made to believe by the media that the Muslims hatred to them is because of religious factors and they picture the Muslims as terrorist. I think this is just to cover up their hidden agenda on controlling the natural resources in Iraq and Afghanistan. I quote this from an article dated 18/06/2010 extracted from <http://www.daralhayat.com> :-

“Afghanistan, Iraq and Palestine are milestones for testing Obama’s promise. This is a test of walking the tightrope between US interests, based on fierce competition to ensure US superiority, and the method of engagement and partnership. Palestine does not rank as high as Iraq and Afghanistan in terms of natural resources, yet it remains a fundamental key to a safe environment in strategic locations rich in natural resources.”

Please go to <http://www.daralhayat.com/portalararticlendam/154041> to read the article. It’s really an interesting article on why America is so keen to have control over Palestine, Iraq and Afghanistan.

Terima kasih...

Salam Tun,Bukankah tragedi 9/11,Kempen Memerangi Keganasan,serangan keatas Afgan dan Iraq hanyalah 'ciptaan' ideologi puak Neo Konservatif ataupun NEO CON yang menguasai era pentadbiran Bush ketika itu.Merekalah pak dalang sebenar disebalik polisi Bush sebagai talian hayat bentuk baru untuk menguasai dunia.Bush hanya mengikut telunjuk Neo Con apatah lagi US menjadi kuasa unipolar setelah kejatuhan Soviet.Globalisasi,Demokrasi dan pasaran bebas adalah antara senjata Neo Con dalam merialisasikan agenda itu dengan menyusup masuk kedalam PBB,IMF dan Liga Arab.Yang untung hanyalah Israel kerana Neo Con menjadikan islam sebagai pesaingnya yang baru.Mungkin benar pertanyaan Bush 'kenapa Islam membenci US?'.Jawapannya ialah Bush hanyalah boneka semata-mata.

Salam,

There must be a reason why God has made us the Muslim community so weak now. I feel that we are at our current state is because God is punishing us maybe because we have forgotten the teachings and reminders laid out in the Quran. The Quran tells us that the Jews were punished and expelled from their land because they practiced usury . Looking back at what the Muslim community has done in recent centuries, it is obvious that we have not obeyed some of those commandments we were supposed to follow. The destruction of a Muslim superpower(the Ottoman state,through cooperation with non-Muslim powers), practicing usury, unwillingness to help the poor, sidelining education (by which i mean the sciences), not working together to contribute towards betterment of the society. Now we don't even have the power to even defend against foreign occupation. I think its high time we reflect on our bigger failures and stop focusing on petty issues like which team's football jersey we are not allowed to wear.

Tun M

so you regard Iraq under Sadamn Hussein an Islamic state.

This is after it's publicly acknowledged that he not only gassed Kurdish "rebels" and his Iranian neighbours...he systematically 'killed' off any dissent internally by literally killing people...he drank which is a big no in Islam...and majority of his cabinet indulged in vice and backstabbing ...

And lets look at non-Islamic countries that the US only point the finger at and not take any direct action as you so call it...

- 1/ North Korea
- 2/ Vietnam
- 3/ and in a prior era - Germany & Japan...

oh..did I jog your memory now... there were onsite assignments there...

oh, if you are speaking of more recent encounters...lets take the Iraq example...oh, they had invaded Kuwait...a fellow Islamic country. The Iraqi military under the leadership of Sadamn raped and pillaged...

And then they threatened to attack Saudi Arabia...the very birth land of Islam...

and who intervened to protect the land - Malaysia? Other Islamic brother nations? US and UK...what..they very non-believers?

And if you still want to bring up the plight of Palestinians...I have asked you many a times in past and as you don't tire of raising this point..I dont tire of asking again...

when the US have time and again tried bringing Israel and Palestine to the discussion table and time and again, Hamas and Hezbollah keep doing tits-for-tats to disrupt any ongoing negotiations...what did you as Malaysian PM do?

Did you as a Muslim leader do what a progressive leader would have done...offered to peace-broker...did you?

why not..is it easy to criticise?...is it not easy to get people around a peace table and talk and get a consensus?

I guess, we know which route you like taking...play the blame game. You do that here...why not internationally as well eh?

Sir...the Israeli-Palestinian conflict goes beyond your spin of things of who you say is the rightful party...no point just blaming Israel and the Americans...Israelis will not give up the land just because Palestinians want it...they will need to come to an agreement where it does not expose them from internal security perspective. Can you see it from Israeli perspective or do you only want to look at it from one side? If the latter ...then you don't truly want peace in that region...you only want to keep stirring the issue as it promotes your own self importance ...

Let us a world citizens truly preach and live peace...not just talk it...

Could you see yourself finding that peace in your golden years?

Darwinism's "survival of the fittest" animalistic in origin has been the west's axiom wrongly ingrained and juxtaposed in their humaninistic framework. Animals do not think per se but humans do. That is the biggest difference to be embraced towards human survivalism.

War is business. The west wants the world in constant tension, hate and turmoil. Becoming paranoid of neighbours nation-states race to buy more weaponry. 'Prosper thy neighbour' is less of a prospect.

The west realised their stupidity of killing among themselves during the two World Wars. Hence, becoming wiser what better targets to look for but the Muslim states, weaken them and exploit their resources - animalistic Darwinism at work. To them killing is becoming habitual. Killing is nothing compared to a life of a dog.

In terms of war technology the US established a War College and also the Ministry of War. That was more than a century ago and from them evolved the sophistications. By now they are the masters of the art of war be it open or psychological. The latter is a potent machinery of disinformation, lying, espionage and assassinations.

It come to a stage that 'kill' is their jargon to stop the BP oil leak. Now they have to 'kill' the on-coming hurricane!

By Sinkapore1234Author Profile Page on July 23, 2010 7:38 PM

Sir,

Allow me some insight into a very complicated affair, quite messy really.

If you really ponder it is actually a religious cum political issue. And has its origin and root in the crusading years. When Europe came that close to becoming a Muslim nation. And when politics and religion were quit interwoven at that time. Even today that applies.

Just as a person whom was given is which essentially a Muslim name such as that of Barack Hussein Obama who would have never made it as the first black president of USA had he remained as one. In fact, the middle name Hussein was very much underplayed and that Obama is now a Christian prominently overplayed. So much for meritocracy craps...but proves my point that one need to be a Christian to get elected in the West.

So, let me get to the point.

It's called Jerusalem..

Now, in the crusading years much of Europe was very much into slitting each other throats and that enmity ran deep indeed. But that was all set aside for only one dream and that dream was to bring Jerusalem under the Christian control..

Hence it does not require one to be a rocket scientist to figure out what Jerusalem must have meant for Christians.

Arabs ruled Jerusalem from 638 and subsequently by the Turkish Othman empire till 1917. Then came the British. Finally the British fulfilled their dreams where their Richard the Lionheart failed in 1191.....Till 1948. Then Jerusalem became a game for anybody and everybody.

Hence whatever we see now as the Israel hegemony over Palestinians had by default got Christians as a factor added into the equation and fray. Just because Jerusalem was involved.. This is a critical factor.

Let me elaborate why that is so.

Traditionally it was the Christians in Europe who actually persecuted the Jews. And it was the Muslim Calips who really gave Jews some space and refuge. But since Jerusalem is involved strange bed-fellas chose to sleep together. That is, Christianity found common grounds with Judaism for the sake of Jerusalem. Otherwise they are sworn enemies.

Now it is imperative to mention here that though the world Jewry are a powerful lobby in the Capital Hill now ; but could never hold a candle to the might of global Christianity at large.

Besides the Christian belt both in US and Europe far outweighed and out numbered any Jewish interest that Jews alone could ever possibly muster .Thus the Christians were and still remains as the most powerful vested groups that no politician worth his salt in the West can afford to ignore or antagonize .Therefore it is this factor and that the Christians being as the most powerful group on the earth that keeps the conflict in the Middle East alive till date.

Because there is not even a remote possibility for a Christian regime, like Vatican to exist in Jerusalem- since it is surrounded by Muslims and Arabs.In fact Jerusalem has more legitimacy as a Christian capital than Vatican by Christian logic.

So some legitimacy had to be cooked up for Jerusalem.And that came about in the form of Israel 's right to exist --never mind that Jews actually exited it for a couple of thousand years!.....notwithstanding it's lunacy or it's ridiculousness ... it was sold as a 'legitimate' reason.With it came the Jew's claims over Jerusalem as Israel 's historical and rightful capital.How convenient !

Everyone knows Israel cannot exist by itself.In fact most Jews who lives there knows that rather too well.Unless of course,with the support of global Christians the existence of Israel becomes very much possible...In return Israel becomes the trustee and the custodian of Jerusalem for Christians.

Than arises the question that why must US and UK dirty their hands for the sake of global Christians.Look no further than Blair and George Bush,the born-again Christians for an answer..They were put in their power seats by the Christian belt voters despite their incompetence as leaders. It is that simple.

Take away the equation of Christianity in the Middle-East and the feud between the Jews and Arabs are solved yesterday.With the Christian financial,physical and moral support Arabs and Jews would be killing each other come next millenium .

That indeed Sir,is the goddamned truth.

By Syed Akbar AliAuthor Profile Page on July 23, 2010 7:20 PM

Dear Tun,

I think the Americans know your argument quite well and they also know that what you say is spot on. However the Yanks want to steal the oil which the Arabs have. (Why dont they just buy the oil, like everyone else? If the Americans dont buy their oil, the Arabs surely cant drink it?)

Hence they have to create this hate illusion, that the "Arabs hate the US". However, from the time they were slave owners, the Americans suffer the hangover of being labelled racists. They are very sensitive about this. Hence they dont wish to say that the "Arabs hate us". That will be deemed anti Arab racism, maybe even anti-semitic, because the Arabs are also a Semitic race.

So they have settled on another feature common to the Arab race yet not race related, which they can use as a focus point to whip up hatred against the Arabs. That is of course the religion of Islam. (How I wished they had picked on camels instead - which is also quite common to Arabs but not so universal.)

Islam however is a world religion with more non Arab than Arab Muslims existing in the world. Unfortunately for the Muslims, yet more oil is found in yet more Muslim countries. Malaysia, Indonesia, Nigeria, Sudan, Brunei, the Central Asian Republics have large quantities of oil. So the Americans can vent their racism against all these countries, go after their oil - all under the camouflage of "the Muslims hate us". The War On Terror will go on for some time.

The Muslims have no problems with China (an atheist nation) or with Germany (quite a hedonistic nation) or with Continental Europe at large. China and Europe together consume as much as if not more oil and other resources as the rest of the world put together (including the US), yet few or no Muslims hate China or Europe. If the Chinese, Germans or Continental Europeans want the oil, they just come over and buy it, without having to shed human blood to get at the oil.

But all these arguments are just so much oil splashed on the floor. It makes the floor slippery and unfortunately it is we, the Muslim countries, who keep slipping on the oil and falling down. Everytime the Yanks want to make us fall down, they splash more oil on the floor and we just keep falling down.

The Americans have not gotten over their racism. Unfortunately the greed for oil and its availability in the lands of the colored people has only helped exacerbate and prolong their racism. I believe if oil production is "democratised" - meaning more non American and non British oil companies are given drilling and production rights, this may help to curb some of America's prolonged racism.

Muslims countries must make it a matter of their national security NOT to allow a concentration of their oil resources in the hands of a select few American or British oil companies. Italy consumes oil but they will not bomb the Arabs for their oil because there are no or few Italian oil companies vying for the oil. Neither will Germany either, although it is about the third largest economy in the world.

If we can break the American and British oil hegemony I think we may buy ourselves more peace.

Thank you Tun for your candid, frank and point blank analysis why America is universally hated, particularly by the Muslims. Your writing refresh my memory of a TV clip a few days after 9/11 and Bush Jr. (then President) was visiting "ground zero" of what was left of the twin tower, and the workers welcomed him with the shouts of "freedom, freedom". It sounded so odd and so naïve in my mind at that time that how ignorant, simplistic and strait-jacket as the Hollywood stereotyping of Cowboys and Indians the American minds are.

America may claim to be the sole superpower today; but the truth of the matter is they are fast falling from grace as a civilization, faster than the rocks of Yellowstone Park. If we look back at the country's history, which was not very long by world civilization's standard (which is roughly about 200 years ago) they have trodden down the path of moral degradation; away from the noble principles and philosophy of their founding fathers, like George Washington and Thomas Jefferson; who stood for justice, rule of law, humanity and equal opportunities for all. The America of today is sadly and aptly a corporate America; run like a corporation headed by the Board of Directors and all that matters to them are "bottom-line" (profits). In order to achieve this objective the end justify the means; even to the extent of conquer , plunder or murder. And who sits on the Board of Corporate USA, if not the likes of the Bilderbeg Group with names like Rockefeller, Goldberg, Kissinger and Soros?

Dear Tun,

The American administration is the greatest fool of the first order. They are making their citizens feel threaten wherever they go all over the world. They are not safe and continuously living in the shadow of fear. This will continue until doomsday. Make no mistake about it. Until they resolve the issue of the Palestine-Israel conflict their citizens will not be able to have peace of mind.

They lost the wars in Vietnam, Korea, Iraq and for definite in Afganistan they will suffer the same fate !! They simply cannot win guerilla warfare. The Americans just unable to sustain such wars.

Some of their soldiers will become MORON if they manage to come back alive.

Dear Tun,

Speaking of the devil himself (Khazanah), why don't you ever touch on Proton? Proton also a part of Khazanah programme. And my Proton's power window is messing with me again, plus my central lock ain't working and my car axle is making that weird squeaking sound again. I have sent it to the Service Center 15 times in 1 year! And still no luck. Admit "lah" Tun, Proton's car quality still sucks even if you give it another 25 years of Protection.

Luckily I only drive Proton to "beli sayur" & "pasar minggu". How about other less fortunate rakyat? They have no choice but to rely the "Pride National Car" to go through and forth everyday! Furthermore most of them are stucked with 9 years bank loan installment. Our car industry is in a messy shape (many thanks to NAP and AP). Me think we wouldn't be able to compete Indonesia, Thailand, Vietnam & Philippines anymore. Latest news; now GM and FORD opening factories at Thailand. VW (after failed discussion with Proton) now opening factory at Indonesia. We are losing Foreign Direct Investment, job opportunities, cheaper and better built cars. And over here, we are still subsidizing "Tin Milo National Car" for nothing.

Other than difficulty to buy newspaper at the roadside stall cause my power window ain't working. Me thinks, to compared that "Fishing and Boat Investment" which "rugi" only few millions, how about Proton, 25 years in Billions of RM? Not to mention we Rakyat have to bear the R&D cost? Eh, what R&D cost? We are the experimental 'guinea pigs'..//

Good day Ayahanda Tun. Only cowards and incompetent people will use Race and Religion Supremacy as tools to fear and oppress others, and this tactic is removing gradually by the entire human civilisation.....

Salam buat Tun dan semua, Adakalanya manusia mempunyai ego untuk menerima dan mengakui kesilapan mereka sendiri. Begitulah yg terjadi kepada Amerika yg merupakan salah sebuah kuasa terbesar di dunia.

Kadang-kala mereka berlagak seolah-olah masyarakat dunia 'blind and idiot' dan tidak dapat menilai mana yg baik dan buruk. Mereka telah memonopoli politik dunia dan PBB dengan begitu baik sekali.

Walaupun kecaman dibuat terhadap kekejaman yg diketuai oleh mereka atau 'rakan-rakan karib mereka' seperti Israel, namun kecaman ini jarang sekali dijadikan batasan atau halangan untuk Amerika terus bersikap angkuh dan menjadi dalang atau penyokong kekejaman di negara-negara yg tidak bersalah seperti Iraq dan Afghanistan.

Negara-negara yg mendapat sokongan Amerika pula akan mendabik dada kerana seolah-olah mendapat 'lesen' atau sokongan dari Amerika. Contoh terdekat, lihatlah negara jiran kita, Singapura.

Sesungguhnya Allah itu lebih dan Maha Mengetahui.

By hakimjbAuthor Profile Page on July 23, 2010 1:27 PM

Dear Tun,

Maybe you can sympathize with the Islamist groups, and criticize the brutalities of the Americans, Israelis and their allies. But what if one day, our beloved country, Malaysia is attacked by a terrorist act? Say, an Islamist group bombs Genting Highlands because it houses a casino. How would we react? Would we still justify the bombing when our people are killed in such attack?

Think carefully. We must NOT support terrorism and brutality, whether it comes from the West, East, North, South, Islamists, Neo-cons, Nazis, Communists, or even Nationalists. If we really support peace and freedom, we must persevere to find the best and most diplomatic way to resolve a conflict. The European Union is an excellent example of how neighbouring countries can work together only less than a century since they've waged war against each other. The UN is another.

Maybe you'd dismiss this and say, look how weak these organizations have been in giving response to recent conflicts. But we musn't forget how they've managed to resolve similar, perhaps larger conflicts in the past. Jangan mudah lupa.

Dear Tun,

It is a good posting. All your reasonings are true and correct. President Bush was sly and hypocrite when he visited and pretended to admire the architecture of a mosque in America not long after 9-11. The same thing goes to Blair who pretended to study Quran. All along the 2 biggest enemies of Islam were dead set to attack Afganistan and Iraq. They had evil intentions against the muslims. Their hands are full of muslims' blood.

On American support of Israel, the credit goes to the jewish elits in America. Their numbers may be small, the American Jews channel their funds and substantial financial resources in aids to Isreal through the American government thus committing and tying up American foreign policy and commitment to Israel. Money talks.

Dear Tun,

I believe those words really came out from the bottom of your heart. It's not what you think that is important, it's what and how you feel about it that really matter.

I, 100% agreed with what you said it out(wrote). Keep writing.

YES, beloved Tun.. because of US's non-sanctioning stance and seemingly unequivocal support of Israeli's atrocities and international crimes against the world community, particularly Palestine. The US, being the self-proclaimed world police, more powerful than the UN, thereby becomes the enemy to humanity - not to just Muslims of the world. It is not a religious issue per se. They succumb to the powerful Israel lobby IS currently destroying world peace and stability, much more seriously than climate change and global warming. What good is the health of the globe if we are leading ourselves to a WW3 when most of us will be dead?? The US need to think and rethink cos they are the powerful game player, holding the trump card.

Have a nice day, sir.

Just as there is the Real Economy and the False Economy, there is also the Real Terrorist and the False Terrorist and the Real American and the False American just as there are Real Diseases and False Diseases.

If the Real History of America is exposed, it can be unveiled that it is run by a shadow Government. The Main Players in this shadow Government are Jews or Cronies of Jews. Who else can we expect these people to support except Israel? Israel is their Father Land.

The Agenda behind the agenda must be much deeper than that - perhaps world domination, which was the agenda of every colonialist in the last 400 years. This must never be overlooked. The same oligopolies which ruled the world through Great Britain are still the ones patrolling the world through America. If this guise is unveiled and 50% of the world come to know the Real Rulers and Manipulators of the World, hundreds of Wars can be stopped and Millions of Lives need not perish in vain.

And the world need not be fooled by Real or False Flags questions.

salam Tun sekeluarga, semoga senantiasa dilimpahi rahmat dan kesihatan. Personally, i'm totally agree with your explanation. But from another aspects, the palestinians must be unite first. Without unity among them, i'm afraid that all our effort from muslim's countries are useless.

Dear Tun,

Wish you good health

So, your point is;

1. Americans support Israeli as such World Trade Center must been targeted and a van should be blown-up in Bali and tie explosive in their body to blow them self and kill others and go on a rampant shooting in Mumbai... killing anyone at sight.

2. This is called Holy_War and Islam teach this.

3. This is not the doing to Avatar.

Oooohhhh... God (be it Allah, Jesus, Buddha or Siva), thanks for sending me to this world as an non-Muslim... as my religion does not teach me to die and kill others under your name GOD or Religion name.

I really like the way Gandhi said... "An eye for an eye, will leave everyone blind"

While I am not the position to educate you, I now know why the Muslim in Shah Alam step on cow head to protest the build of Hindu temple.

I read an article the Prophet Muhammad(s.a.a.w.) allow a non-Muslim woman to build temple in Mecca (after the woman temple been destroyed by his follower) and provide protection for her to practice her believe.

I wonder whose teaching this so-called Muslim's in Shah Alam following.

Of-course the woman eventually converted to Muslim because he like the way Prophet Muhammad(s.a.a.w.) treat her, I also would consider to embrace Islam if the violent is not there.

Thanks Tun wish you good health.

P.S - I will truly understand if this posting been filtered.

Salam,

Tears in my eyes when reading Tun latest post, so proud because we have person like Tun Mahathir which consistently voice out Palestinian issue.

This will be the voice of Muslims & peace lovers all over the world. Listen America!

Bush "I don't know why they hate us, but I know why Anwar Ibrahim love us....."

Salam hormat Tun.

12. " So why do they, the Muslims, hate Americans? Is it because they hate democracy and freedom? Only the most stupid can suggest this."

Well Tun. The most STUPID & IDIOT among the US Presidencies are no other than GEORGE W BUSH Jr. Not only that he is stupid but arrogant. The American preachs democracy but when Hamas won the election democratically, the Americans & the Europeans failed to recognized it thus stemmed the perception that THEY are practicing double standard. What a shame for a preacher of so called DEMOCRACY.

Instead of being killed unprepared and unarmed by the Israelis, the Palestinian should be opted with honorable methods of defense and allowed to fight in a level playing field. They should be given ample arms and armory to defend themselves against Israel aggressions. Not beseige as presently ongoing and let to be slaughtered by Israelis anytime they feel happy to sacrifice them. That's very unfair. Let the Palestinians die protecting their homeland gentlymently. Supply them with weapons and let see if the Israelis can sustain their egotism.

Al Qaeda should train young Palestinians in the field of snipership as a strategy to assasinate the Israel leadership especially the PM Natanyahu and all those who potrays hardline leadership. Just like what they did to most Palestinian leadership through their MOSSAD and CIA. An EYE for an EYE. That's it.

Like other Muslims, yes I hate the Americans too.

Greetings Tun ,

I randomly stumbled on to you in Perth today during my lunch break!!! (William St. to be exact), while waiting for my wife to get of the bus. I'm guessing you were just having a stroll out in the city. I was spell bounded, and I didn't know how to react, I'm passionate about politics and would have had a bucket load to thank you and talk to you about, not that you would have had the time .

I have met you before in University Tenaga Nasional sometime back , as I was part of the student welcoming committee then, but this is different, it was surreal, you allowed me to be just another Malaysian meeting another Malaysian.

Your son Mokhzani was brilliant, in accommodating to a fellow Malaysian like me. I was stumbling with my phone, trying to get a picture, but your photographer had to take one eventually as I'm sure I was holding you up. I hope he does send me those pics, it would mean the world to me. You were so down to earth it was all I imagined you to be.

I hope you read this, I would love to share my insight on the political climate in Malaysia, maturity of the average Malaysian voter in general and what I feel, but I'm sure you have enough gospel preachers badgering you with their thoughts. Hence, I'll try to keep this short and sweet.

You are indeed an elderly man (which a lot of people are quick to forget) and one who has done a lot for the nation. You have earned and deserve every inch of respect. I was born in 1981 and I am a product of your Malaysia. I'm proud of it and will always be. You are indeed a born leader. I hope you have an amazing time ahead of your life and may god bless you. I just want you to know that you have touched many in more ways than you can imagine directly or indirectly, and like me there are millions that share my sentiments. I hope that puts a smile on your face, it was a pleasure meeting and talking to you; I only wish I wasn't that tongue tied.

I face constant tirades of insults daily on my support to you, but to me it's clear as day and night (people tend to think more with their heart than their brains), and to meet someone I believe in of what he stands for and the grandmaster of politics himself was priceless. You were ahead of your time and always will be. My fondest memories of the nation will forever be of your Malaysia.

Thank you.

Salam all,

I saw a documentary about the history of America.

And it claims that american fought all their wars so that the people in America can enjoys American freedom and lifestyle.

Is it justify to kill thousands of innocent people overseas so that you can sleep silently and cozily in your bed?

What are human turning into?

Good Morning Tun,

US is not only hated by Muslim nations. It was hated by the Viets and Cubans. They should stop screwing up other people's lands.

Here is a summary of what US did the last half century.

List of American oppression.
