To

My wife, Suhaila, for her devotion to me and our children during the many hours I was away from them researching world monetary systems. Her encouragement and support kept me going, in spite of the anger I experienced in discovering the truth about how the world's population has been enslaved by the money creators. I award her a medal of honor.

My son, F. René, and my daughter, Nicole, who first sparked the idea for this book when they asked me to explain money on Christmas day eight years ago. Little did I know then that this project would demand so much of my time. I commend them for their patience and understanding.

And to all the children of the world, that they will live to witness an intelligent and equitable monetary system, the abolishment of most taxes, and a planet free from hunger, disease, poverty, and wars. May they have the courage to complete the path to world peace and plenty that I envision for them.
